LATIN AMERICA HOPES FOR END OF REBELLIONS

Countries Turn to Polls ni 1931 for Solution of Troubles.

UPWARD ECONOMIC TREND IS EXPECTED

Stimulation of Industry to Smooth Out Troubled Political Waters.

Associated Press.

Emerging from a year marked by revolt and coups d'etat, several Latin-American nations probably will seek a way to settle their economic difficulties at the presidential polls in 1931.

Some observers believe they will be aided in this by an upward economic trend, creating in this country a stimulation of industry which would give Latin America an increased market for its raw materials and commodities.

The more optimistic officials cite American economic history to show no crisis has lasted more than 18 months.

Face Same Conditions.

Meanwhile, Commerce Department statistics show the new governments in seven Latin-American states which revolted in 1930 face virtually the same economic conditions which disturbed their predecessors, plus the costs of revolution.

Spain—the mother country of the Latin Americas, and rated as economically above the average European country—also faces a world-wide economic depression, plus the costs of stamping out revolution.

First of the Latin-American countries to resort to armed uprising in 1930, the inland nation of Bolivia will lead the procession to the ballot box. Presidential elections have been announced for early January.

Promised New Elections.

Peru, Argentina and Brazil, which experienced successful revolts, may follow Bolivia to the polls during the coming year. Each is governed by the men whose military prowess drove elected predecessors from office. They have promised to call for new elections as soon as reorganization work is sufficiently advanced.

Somewhat more complex is the problem of elections in Guatemala, a country added last week to the list of nations in which 1930's economic evolution spelled revolution.

Gen. Manuel Orellana, elected by the assembly after a coup d'etat, holds office as presidential designate until President Lazaro Chacon, who retired with a cerebral hemorrhage, is able to resume his duties or becomes definitely incapacitated.

In the latter case the Guatemalan constitution provides for election of another designate who would call immediately for presidential elections.

Recognition Is Withheld.

Meanwhile, the five central American countries and the United States are bound by the treaty of peace and amity of 1926 to withhold recognition from any Central American government installed by revolution or coup d'etat. The State Department proposes a thorough study of Orellana's installation.

In the other two Latin American countries which saw revolt during the year, the smoke of battle cleared away early and constitutional elections placed two new presidents in power. They are President Stenio Vincent, of Haiti, and President Rafael Trujillo, of the Dominican republic. Both have pledged their administrations to cooperation with the other Americas in the general uphill climb to economic readjustment.

Cuba, Chile, Ecuador and Venezuela experienced revolutionary tremors. President Machado, of Cuba, quelled sporadic outburst by the opposition Nacionalista group and student riots during the last half of the year. Constitutional guarantees have been suspended for the time being in Cuba to permit the president to deal vigorously with an unruly situation.

Ibanez Misses Assassination.

In Chile President Carlos Ibanez was called upon to stamp out an aboritive revolutionary attempt at the Concepcion garrison shortly after President Hipolito Irigoyen's government was overthrown in Argnetina. Recently he passed unscathed through an attempt to assasinate him.

Faced with growing resentment against his stringent economy program, President Isidoro Ayoora, of Ecuador, resigned in midsummer. Popular demand took a new surge and he was forced back into office.

By virtue of scattered interior political disturbances and reverberations against the so-called "Gomez regime" Venezuela was generally credited with experiencing revolutionary tremors.

Offsetting this popular conception was the growing feeling of assurance in Venezuelan solidarity arising from the widely proclaimed fact that Venezuela last summer liquidated her foreign obligations and, compared to sister American nations, became the economic phenomenon ofo 1930.

Those Latin-American countries which approach the new year without having shown noteworthy trace of internal revolt are Mexico, Colombia, Uruguay, El Salvador, Panama, Nicaragua, Cos atRica, Honduras and Paraguay.

20 DIE, MANY HURT IN ANDES TEMBLOR

South American Village Is Laid in Ruins by Violent Earthquake.

MEDICAL RELIEF IS SENT

Salta, Argentina, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—A violent earthquake laid the village of La Poma, situated in the Andes Mountains, in ruins today, costing an estimated total of twenty lives and nearly a hundred injured. The bodies of all the dead were reported to have been recovered tonight.

Among the dead were eight women and two small boys. Two hundred families were homeless with their dwellings either destroyed or unsafe.

The shock occurred about 3 a. m., lasting about 10 minutes, and was felt in many parts of the entire state of La Poma. Slight damage but no loss of life was reported at San Antonio de Los Cobres.

Immediately on receipt of news of the tragedy at Salta a relief expedition set out carrying medical supplies and tents for the sufferers. La Poma is about 75 miles from Salta. The national ministry of public works also ordered the highway personnel mobilized for relief.

News of the disaster was given Salta, the capital of the state of Salta in northwestern Argentina, through the enterprise of postal employes, who established a telegraph station in an open field after their building was wrecked.

Posse Seizes Maniac After Pitched Battle

Chicago, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—John Redeker, a farmer described by his physician as a dangerous maniac, was captured late today on an isolated Cook County estate.

Redeker had barricaded himself in a cabin, holding off deputy sheriffs and county highway police with rifle fire. He fell asleep and was routed out by officers who closed in on the cabin and tossed tear bombs.

The maniac had three rifles and a shotgun.

NEW CONSTRUCTION SET AT FIVE BILLION

Determined Drive Seen as Nation's Answer to Needs of Unemployed.

YEAR-END REPORTS MADE

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Five billion dollars worth of construction defies America's unemployment.

Year-end reports, compiled from all sections of the country, show spring roads and building being pushed ahead for winter labor, public works getting under way with increasing volume, new rails and pipe lines creating swelled pay rolls and ready aid being extended everywhere to persons who can not be put to work.

Basing his figures on contracts let during the year, L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician for the F. W. Dodge Corporation, estimated the cost of construction now under way at more than $4,700,000,000.

Besides the $116,000,000 appropriated for immediate use, the Federal Government plans to spend $724,000,000 for building in the next twelve months. Another $80,000,000 has just been made available for Federal aid roads, which, matched by the States, rolls into a total of $160,000,000.

State commissions and county and city committees, coordinated by the President's emergency commission, are pushing public work, encouraging private work and devising means of relief. States and cities are appropriating treasury funds and raising public funds. Civic bodies and private individuals are contributing in a hundred different ways.

Many workers are contributing a portion of their pay to relief, persons of means and leisure are producing benefits and serving on relief committees. Several cities are serving free meals to the payless. One State game and fish commission is permitting the wholesale seining of fish from a river so the poor may be fed.

Some blue law States are permitting Sunday movies with the proceeds going to relief. Throughout the land

MULLEN BOUND TO GRAND JURY IN PARTY DEATH

Coroner's Inquest Finds Criminal Neglect on Part of Youth.

TWO WOMEN QUIZZED UPON FATAL SHOOTING

Bond Is Given for Son of Detective Sergeant, Held in Slaying.

Adjudged "criminally negligent in the handling of firearms," Charles Edward Mullen was held to the grand jury at a coroner's inquest yesterday. The 22-year-old son of Detective Sergt. Charles Mullen, of the Metropolitan Police Department, fired the bullet which caused the death of George R. Hale Tuesday night, in an apartment at 2127 California street northwest.

Young Mullen was released under $1,000 bail after the verdict was returned, almost an hour after the jury began deliberations.

Two Examined.

Mrs. John Rousseau, hostess at the fatal card party, during which the allegedly accidental shooting occurred, and Miss Margaret Scotson, the fourth player, testified and were cross-examined at length.

"We just thought he was fooling," declared Miss Scotson, who is 22 years old, after she and Mrs. Rousseau told how Mullen laughingly had brandished the "empty" gun during the rummy game.

"Mullen had been playing with the gun," Mrs. Rousseau testified. "He snapped it at Miss Scotson, but I thought, of course, it was empty, and didn't pay any attention. I didn't see him raise the gun, or hear him say anything when the explosion came. Through the smoke, I saw Hall fall forward. Mullen was on his knees trying to raise him and sobbing: 'My God! Have I shot you, Buddy?'"

Hale Was 25.

The wounded man, who was 25 years old, was dead when Mullen arrived at Emergency Hospital with the victim, his chest pierced by a bullet which entered just above the heart.

Mullen lives on Crittenden street northwest near Ninth, and Miss Scotson on Church street northwest, near Eighteenth.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Hale home on Randolph street northwest, near Fifth, conducted by the Rev. Frank Smith.

Survivors of the slain man, who was in the ice business, are the mother, Mrs. George R. Hale, who also lost her husband this year; and three brothers and five sisters, all younger than George. They are, ranged from youngest to eldest, Eunice, Clifton, Lawrence, Julius, Catherine, James, Frank and Dolly. None are married.

Lindberghs to Spend Day With Morrows

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh plan to spend a quiet Christmas at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's parents, Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, at Englewood, N. J.

Charles, jr., who was six months old, December 22, will play his little part, too, but if he is to get presents of an unusual nature his father didn't know it tonight. "He's too little to know much about Christmas this year," the colonel said.

Author of Noted Yule Verses Is Honored

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Clement C. Moore, the poet who wrote "A Visit From St. Nicholas," which begins, ""Twas the night before Christmas," was honored tonight.

Two thousand persons assembled in the London Terrace Gardens, on the site of his birth, to unveil a memorial tablet.

LUCAS INSISTS HOOVER IS OUT OF PARTY ROW

Assumes Full Burden of Stand on Norris as Committee Aid.

OLIVE BRANCH OFFER REJECTED BY HOWELL

G. O. P. Leader Says He Has No Quarrel With Borah or Any Other Senator.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

In keeping with the season's spirit, the warring Republicans yesterday held their statement activities down to what might be termed desultory firing.

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, who ostensibly is making a one-man fight on Senator Norris, issued one statement, tendering the olive branch to the other Progressives or rather saying he had no quarrel with any of them save Mr. Norris, which was in a sense rejected in a later statement from Senator Howell, of Nebraska.

Then Mr. Lucas issued another statement in the way of saying "and another thing," and that was that President Hoover had nothing to do with the controversy; that he, Mr. Lucas, was an employe of the Republican national committee. Then, realizing that he had left out Senator Borah in his earlier statement, he said he had no quarrel with him either.

Miles Away at Time.

It is perhaps one of the phenomena of politics that, all the time these statements were coming from Mr. Lucas' mimeograph, he was either en route to or in Louisville. According to the Associated Press, he arrived there at 1:45 o'clock in the afternoon and was greeted by an admiring 300 or so who were very proud of the Kentucky boy who went to the city and made good.

Withal, it was what an official communique would call a quiet day on the Republican front.

Both of Mr. Lucas' statements, or rather those credited to him, might be called significant. In his first one he laid down his rule of Republicanism that the party's presidential candidate must be supported in the election. This, Senator Norris did not do.

"I have, of course, noted the criticism directed at me by Senators Cutting, Howell and Nye, because of the support I gave the anti-Norris Republicans of Nebraska in the recent campaign," he said

No. Quarrel, He Asserts.

"I wish to say I have no quarrel with either of these senators, nor with any other senator who affiliates himself with the Republican party. With the exception of Senator Norris, they all supported the Republican party and its nominees in 1928.

"Senator Norris, on the other hand, is in a class by himself. He denounced the nominee of the Republican convention at Kansas City in 1928. He threw his support to, and made speeches for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee. No other Republican senator did this, whether he be called a Progressive, Regular or member of the Farm-Labor party.

"In the recent campaign I supported with all my heart every national Republican candidate except Senator Norris, because those candidates had remained loyal to the party in the campaign of 1928 and were entitled to my support and the support of all Republicans. I assisted the anti-Norris Republicans of Nebraska because Senator Norris had deserted them in 1928 and supported the Democratic party.

"I shall not engage in any controversy with any senator, irrespective of

OUSTED POWER MEN MAY BE REINSTATED

King, Russell Return Is Held Possible; Continued War on Board Likely.

"WRONG ATTITUDE" SEEN

(Associated Press.)

Administration leaders in the Senate prepared yesterday to resist any attempt to reconsider the confirmation of members of the Federal Power Commission.

Senate Republican independents, and some Democrats, are demanding reconsideration of the votes by which three commissioners were confirmed as a result of the commission's dismissal of Solicitor Charles A. Russell, Chief Engineer William V. King and F. E. Bonner, executive secretary.

Administration senators are planning to oppose this movement by arguing the new commissioners should be let alone and given full responsibility.

Meanwhile it was reported the commissioners were planning to reinstate King and Russell. Some of those advocating reconsideration of the confirmations indicated, however, this would not change their plans, because they contend the members of the commission showed "the wrong mental attitude" in dismissing the two employes.

Chairman Smith and Commissioner Garsaud, two of those under criticism from the independent senators, called yesterday on Chairman Couzens, of the interstate commerce committee, but Couzens declined to say what was discussed.

Smith said he had told the senator that Bonner, Russell and King had been ousted on the same basis.

MAN, 75, OVERCOME BY SMOKE, RESCUED

Several Hundred Persons Witness Traffic Jam at G Street Blaze.

THREE ALARMS SENT IN

W. W. Ludlow, a 75-year-old retired employe of the United States Treasury Department, was rescued from his apartment on the second floor of 2020 G street northwest early yesterday afternoon, after having been overcome by smoke coming from a three-alarm fire in the adjoining building.

Patrolman G. H. Chrisman of No. 7 Police Precinct, attached to the Reserve Squad at the No. 3 Precinct, made the rescue, after having been informed that Mr. Ludlow was in his apartment and unable to get out.

Mr. Ludlow was given first aid treatment and allowed to remain at home. He has been confined to his room sometime on account of illness.

The fire, said to have been started by an overheated furnace, destroyed the interior of a four-story brick building at 2022 G street northwest.

It was discovered about 3 o'clock when a passerby noticed smoke pouring from the windows of the building and turned in an alarm.

Firemen upon arriving and seeing the smoke-screened building, sent in additional alarms as a precautionary measure.

The building, used for classrooms of George Washington University and also by the Phi Beta Phi and Phi Sigma Sigma sororities, was unoccupied at the time. A crowd of several hundred persons were attracted to the scene.

Apparatus on their way to the fire were slowed down by heavy traffic which was clogging the downtown streets, due to the late Christmas shoppers.

Patrolman Chrisman was the hero of a fire several months ago when he entered a burning apartment house on Chapin street, near Fourteenth street northwest, and secured a number of personal possessions of a woman who occupied a sixth-floor apartment.

The damage was estimated at more than $1,000.

BAND AIDS CAROLERS IN MUSICAL PROGRAM

President's Address Heard Over Radio Hook-Up; Poor Cared For.

President Hoover last night wished the people of the United States a "Merry Christmas" that echoed across the continent.

The President and first lady braved a cold North wind that whipped knife-like around the south end of the Treasury to attend the Community Christmas Tree exercises in Sherman Square.

His greeting was one of the shortest on record, but the message carried over two Nation-wide hook-ups to the far ends of the country.

"Fellow citizens of Washington and my countrymen everywhere," he said simply. "It is a great privilege to join in this community effort, and it is a greater privilege even to wish you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

President Lights Tree.

A few moments before Mr. Hoover pressed a tiny button. The living spruce that graced the square blazed into red, blue and green lights. A signal flare burst overhead. And throughout the District Boy Scout buglers sounded the call that told that the tree was lighted.

Men high in public life sat with the President and Mrs. Hoover on the wooden stand erected opposite the tree. Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell and Secretary of the Interior Wilbur were seated on his right, and at his left were Secretary of War Hurley and Senator Arthur Capper. Secretary of Labor Doak was also on the stand.

A short address by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3rd, tracing the history of the Community Tree movement, preceded the President's greeting and a group of some 3,000 persons assembled for the exercises sang Christmas carols.

Marine Band Plays

William R. Schmucker led as voices rose to the familiar strains of "O Come All Ye Faithful," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," and "Silent Night." Earlier, before the arrival of the Presidential party, the Marine Band gave a half-hour program of Christmas music.

A simple response to Mr. Hoover's greeting was made by Girl Scout Betty Jane Oswald and Eagle Scout Henry H. Bowles, and the exercises were brought to a close. Many of those assembled broke up into little groups which later went to hospitals and orphanages singing Christmas carols.

Meantime various Washington communities, institutions and churches were celebrating the festival, each in its own way. There was carol singing at many of the churches in the early evening, and at midnight, the Eucharist. At the Union Station the Travelers' Aid Society and the Y. W. C. A. arranged a Christmas welcome for tralevelers arriving through-

Bishop Freeman Speaks

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, addressed exercises at the new Episcopal Home for Children, at Nebraska Avenue and Rock Creek Church road, which held its formal opening yesterday. At the Mayflower Hotel the vested choir of St. John's Episcopal Church sang Christmas carols.

Earlier in the day three Christmas parties of note were held for the city's poor. Mrs. Hoover officiated at two of these, aiding in the distribution of bags at the Central Union Mission's party for children at the Fox Theater, and giving out the first of 600 baskets dispjensed by the Salvation Army, at 606 E street northeast. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, was hostess at the Volunteers of America's party at 928-930 Pennsylvania avenue.

Last Minute Contributions Rushed to Post's Toy Fund

Washington Residents Unable to Stop Giving and Additional $47.50 on Christmas Eve Makes Total $2,657.92; Assistants Are Thanked.

The good folks of Washington just couldn't let The Post Toy Fund stop until right up to Christmas Day and so yesterday's mail brought in an additional $47.50, making the fund stand at $2,657.92 after less than a month of campaigning.

These last-minute contributions were rushed to the Council of Social Agencies to care for final appeals for help which had not been included in the early lists of those needing aid to provide a merry Christmas for the youngsters.

One of the interesting items on yesterday's list of contributions was one for $29.50 from the Arts Club of Washington, which thought so well of The Post's idea that the matter was called to attention at Tuesday night's session and the amount raised.

While anxious to extend thanks to all contributors to the Toy Fund, The Post also wants to take this opportunity to extend its thanks to the many persons who have made the distribution of the fund and the toys purchased from it possible.

The list includes Walter S. Ufford, of the Associated Charities; Miss Martina Please, of the Christ Child Society; Maj James Asher, of the Salvation Army; Miss Patricia Morse, Child Welfare Division; Mrs. Florence T. Lyons, American Legion; Charles M. Syse, Boys Club; Dr. K. B. Jones, District Training School; Mrs. J. P. S. Neligh, of Neighborhood House; Miss Lidia Burklin, Friendship House; Boyd Hinds, of Noel House; Mrs. Alma Scott, of the Mother-Child Center; Miss Marion Conover, Washington Welfare Association, and Miss Edith Coulson, Council of Social Agencies.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Every day has been numberless times a birthday. Only a few are widely celebrated, for it is not the event of birth but what is done in after life that makes a natal day especially significant. For many generations Christmas has been joyously observed wherever there has been a vestige of Western civilization because on that day was born one who grew to be the only perfect man and became the Savior of the world. No other fact, no other influence in human experience has compared with the birth and life of Christ. Down through the ages He has borne the name of Master. He gained that everlasting title not by the use of any material force but by demonstrating the moral and spiritual power of mankind.

Christmas represents love and mercy. It was ushered in by the star of hope and remains forever consecrated by the sacrifice of the cross. Christmas holds its place in the hearts of men because they know that love is the greatest thing in the world. Christmas is celebrated in its true spirit only by those who make some sacrifice for the benefit of their fellow men.

Sounds of Exceeding Joy Ring Again in City of David

Tradition And Rites of First Christmas Live Once More in Bethlehem at Exact Spot Where Christ Child Was Born.

Bethlehem, Palestine, Christmas Morn (A.P.).—This little city of David, which is called Bethlehem, rang again today with sounds of exceeding joy of adoration of the newborn King.

In the Church of the Nativity, which, according to tradition, stands on the site of Christ's humble birthplace, midnight mass was celebrated with ritualistic pomp and splendor. Hundreds filled the great edifice which replaces the little shed where Mary and Joseph sought shelter after they had been turned away from the inn. Others overflowed in the surrounding fields where shepherds still abide tending their flocks by night.

Time has passed lightly over Bethlehem and in the dusk before this Christmas morning it was easy to imagine it still the little city of Judea as it was in the days of Herod the king, when Joseph and Mary came out of Galilee to pay the tax that Caesar Augustus levied on all the world.

As the service continued the choir from the Cathedral in nearby Jerusalem sang carols in the field of the shepherds outside. The dimly seen and faintly heard singers seemed, in the magic of the moment, to be that multitude of the heavenly host who reassured the simple shepherds long ago when they were sore afraid as the glory of the Lord shone about them.

And like that heavenly host, the choristers lifted their voices in praise, singing "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men."

The pontifical high mass began just at 11:30 in the church whose spires are believed to point upward to the exact spot where the star of at its luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower. Christmas greetings were delivered by the Rev. Lawrence Sheehan, of the Catholic University. Later the club sent committees with gifts to the Neighborhood House and other charitable institutions.

Church Services Today.

This morning Christmas services will be held in churches throughout the city. Five services are scheduled at Bethlehem chapel of the Washington Cathedral, where at 11 o'clock the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, will speak over a nation-wide radio network.

Charitable organizations last night were pushing plans to assure today a Christmas dinner and comfortable quarters for all of those unprovided for.

At Central Union Mission a turkey dinner with all of the trimmings awaits 300 jobless men. William La Roe, jr., a director of the mission, furnished 150 pounds of turbey as a substitute for the pork that otherwise would have been served.

More than a hundred members of the Y. M. C. A., unable to get home for Chritmas, will be guests of the association at festivities to be held in the Assembly Hall of the Y. M. C. A. Building. There will be a Christmas tree, and gifts distributed by a bona fide Santa Claus.

Other Celebrations Planned.

The Gospel Mission, 214 John Marshall Place, will entertain 250 needy children at a Christmas party this morning. Yesterday the mission distributed holiday dinners to 400 families.

Three hundred pairs of men's socks will be given out tonight. The mission is desirous of receiving more donations of clothing for men, women and children and will send a wagon to call for contributions. The home's telephone number is National 1731.

At 8 o'clock this morning Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan, of the Fourth Precinct, will play Santa to 1,500 children who live in the Fourth Precinct territory. That number of sacks, laden with fruit and candy donated, will be stacked in front of the station, between Four-and-a-Half street southwest, and later distributed.

At 9:30 this morning the United States Army Band will follow its annual custom of "serenading" the President and his holiday guests on the north lawn of the White House. President and Mrs. Hoover and their grand-children will listen from the north portico. Capt. William J. Stannard will lead the band.

Bandits Wound Dentist; Strapped in Own Chair

Milwaukee, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. William O. Koehn, was wounded critically today by two men who strapped him in the chair of his dental office, and fired four bullets into his body after he shouted an alarm.

The dentist had been working on the teeth of one of the men while the other loitered in the waiting room. The patient overpowered the dentist and prepared to rob the office. Dr. Koehn's outcry aroused other tenants of the building and one of the gunmen fired before fleeing. Nothing was stolen.

Santo Domingo Linked To U. S. Through Radio

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Direct radio service between the United States and Santo Domingo was opened today by the Radio Corporation of America, the sixth direct service with a foreign country to be opened this year.

The first messages transmitted were an exchange of greetings between President Hoover and President Rafael Trujillo, of the West Indian republic. Earlier in the year direct service was established to Panama, Chile, Russia, Czechoslovakia and China.

Seaboard President Qualifies as Receiver

Norfolk Va., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—L. R. Powell, jr., president of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, who was appointed as one of two equity receivers for the railway in the United States District Court here yesterday, qualified today and gave a $50,000 bond as receiver.

Ethelbert W. Smith, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad in charge of operations in the central region, appointed as the other receiver, will not arrive here to qualify until after the Christmas holidays.

Tom Mix Divorced For Second Time

Mental Cruelty Is Cited in Charge as in Earlier Action.

Los Angeles, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Tom Mix, Western he-man of the films, was divorced for the second time today. Extreme mental cruelty, including unexplained absences from home, were charged by Mrs. Victoria Forde Mix, his second wife, in obtaining the decree. Mix, who had filed a general denial, did not appear. His attorneys advised the court the film cowboy is not in California.

Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, who divorced the actor in 1917, likewise had charged cruelty. He married his second wife a year later. Besides her freedom, she won her 9-year-old daughter, Tomasina, and a property settlement. Terms of the settlement were not made public. Under an agreement approved by the court, the child will spend half her annual summer vacation with her father.

"During one of his absences," Mrs. Mix testified in Superior Court, "I lost nine pounds through worrying."

Mix, who will be 51 years of age January 6, was born in El Paso County, Texas.

NEW CLASS SPIRIT URGED BY PONTIFF

Pope Pleads for Better Social Adjustment to Aid World's Idle.

WILL DISCUSS MARRIAGE

Vatican City, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—A plea for better relations among the classes as a remedy for the world problem of unemployment was made by Pope Pius in his Christmas Eve message today.

"Better social and international adjustment, inspired by greater justice and Christian charity" will relieve the unemployment crisis which is taking "labor and bread from so many families," the pontiff told the assembled college of cardinals.

This, he said, could be accomplished without overturning the order established by Providence, and would make possible among all peoples a fraternal collaboration, instead of "strife and competition, harmful and sooner or later disastrous."

It would be difficult, however, the Pope warned, for internal peace of "intelligence and hearts" to reign and endure "if the strong motives of contrast are made to arise and continue among citizens and social classes from the unequal distribution and proportion of advantages and burdens."

Urges World Peace.

The pontiff declared this cooperative harmony must be made the basis of relations between nations also. It would be difficult, if not impossible, for peace to reign, he warned, "if in place of a legue of genuine love of country there reigned an egoistic and inflexible nationalism —that is to say, hate and envy in place of mutual desire of good; diffidence and suspicion instead of concord and cooperation; ambitions of hegemony and domination instead of respect for, and the safeguarding of, all rights, especially those of the small and weak."

While the whole world still feels the consequences of the great war, the Pope said he could not believe any state could be so homicidal and even suicidal as to wish to start a new war.

He pronounced his wishes for "that peace which angels at Christmas announced to the earth in Christ's name. It should be the real peace of Christ and not a confused and indistinct sentiment of pacifism, because the only real peace is that which comes from God, the only one capable of giving this precious and enduring fruit."

To Discuss Marriage.

The pontiff again expressed his objection to Protestant missionary activity in Italy, especially in Rome, where he said propaganda was being circulated in violation of Lateran treaties, which expressly safeguarded "Rome's sacred character."

The pontiff said he was pained and grieved to see "even more intense and vast and impudent Protestant propaganda, sometimes open and reasoned, sometimes subtle and deceitful."

This, he said, was in spite of a law which, while it gave non-Catholics the faculty of professing their religion, did not allow their proselytizing, particularly against the Catholic Church, which is the sole religion of the Italian state. He had profound faith, he said, that it would cease in the interests of Italy herself.

The Pope announced he would soon have ready an encyclical dealing with matrimony. He mentioned the recent marriage of King Boris of Bulgaria to the former Princess Giovanna, saying there were some small errors of belief in connection with the ceremony, for example, the erroneous thought that the marriage had been reenacted at Sofia, when it had already taken place at Assisi.

Man Sues for $25,000 In Taxi-Truck Smash

Claiming he had been injured in an accident while a passenger in a taxicab, Elmer E. Booze, of 1437 Spring road northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $25,000 from the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co., of 920 E street northwest, and the Black & White Taxicab Co., of the Union Station.

Booze sets forth that on Christmas day, in 1927, he was a passenger in a taxicab operated by the Black & White Co., which was struck at Fifteenth and K streets by a truck belonging to the other defendant. Negligence on the part of both defendants is alleged. Attorney Alvin Newmyer appears for the plaintiff.

Former Dunbar Head To Retire as Teacher

W. T. Sherman Jackson, principal of the Dunbar High School from 1906 to 1909, announced yesterday his retirement from service as a public school teacher effective December 31, after a tenure of 38 years. He came to the school system following graduation from Amherst College in 1892, and was appointed to teach mathematics when the high school first occupied the old M street building.

He obtained his master's degree from Amherst in 1897, meanwhile having obtained the degree of bachelor of social science from the Catholic University of America in 1896. He had charge of the business department of the Dunbar High School, now the Cardozo Business High School, from 1912 to 1918, being principal of the night organization also.

Cases in Police Court Fewer; Fines Decrease

Police Court cases have shown a decrease of 30 per cent during the current year, with an accompanying drop of $110,000 in the total of fines collected, it was made known yesterday.

The figures indicate that, for the first time since 1900, the total number of persons arraigned has failed to show an increase. The revenue from prohibition cases alone showed a slight increase, with a total of $49,148.92 reported collected in fines by Financial Clerk Andrew J. Sanford.

Hoovers Hosts To Children At White House Yule Party

President and First Lady Give Unique Presents to Attaches While Youngsters Are Recipients of Santa Claus' Bounty at Tree Celebration.

To use a favorite word of President Hoover, the yuletide spirit was rampant at the White House yesterday and last night. For one thing, the President and the First Lady gave the White House employes novel Christmas presents, to which were attached a bit of free verse.

Who wrote the verse, whether it was the President or Mrs. Hoover, or maybe somebody else, was not made known.

The presents were cigarette boxes and other mementoes, all carved from the ancient pine wood that was taken from the White House when the roof was repaired during the Coolidge regime.

The verse, which tells the history of the wood, follows:

"A pine tree on the hills of Maryland, through many summers' heats and winters' snows,
Felled, carted, quartered, sawn, a metamorphosis within a week.
And then a century buried deep within the White House walls—unseen, unsung, but one of myriads of myriads holding firm together the storied structure.

"Until—a new age came and replaced steel for wood.
Then months upon the dump. The dump cart actually arrived for one last ride—
And then a rescue. Now here I rest upon your desk for a short space; until—the waste basket and the fire.

Then once again I'll go—free smoke before free wind—to touch again
the hills of Maryland."

Little children held sway at the White House last night. The central figures were the three grandchildren of the President and Mrs. Hoover—Peggy Ann Hoover, 4½; Herbert Hoover 3d, not quite three, and Joan Hoover, the baby.

These three, whose father, Herbert Hoover, jr., is convalescent at Asheville, N. C., had as their guests the children of the President's secretaries and aids and those of one Cabinet couple—Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley.

The party was held in the state dining room, which had been brilliantly decorated for the occasion. The First Lady herself had directed the setting up and the decorating of the tree, which gleamed with lights and tinseled presents.

The Christmas party, which Mrs. Hoover had planned, consisted of a turkey feast, a "Parade of the Tin Soldiers," the exchange of presents and the usual romping and tooting of horns that attends Christmas parties throughout the land.

In the "Parade of the Tin Soldiers," the President, holding a candle, took the lead, and the children fell in behind him. Then followed a parade through the mansion, the object of which was to locate Santa Claus. That he was found goes without saying.

The grown-up guests were there as the guests of their children. Thus, George Akerson and Walter Newton, the President's secretaries, were there simply because they had been invited by their eldest sons—George Akerson, jr., and Marshall Newton.

Other children present were Fred and Charlie Akerson, French Strother, jr., son of French Strother, the President's literary secretary; Suzanne Boone, daughter of Capt. Joel T. Boone, and Patricia, Ruth and Wilson Hurley, children of Secretary and Mrs. Hurley.

Two of the Hurley children, Patricia, 10, and Wilson, 6, were in somewhat of a quandary earlier in the day.

Patricia was cynical. She had heard from a school chum that Santa Claus was a myth, and she so told her parents. The parents, however, entered into some sort of a bargain with her, and the result was that she agreed to keep her thoughts to herself.

The Hurley boys, on the other hand, was plagued by another puzzle.

"Didn't you say there was only one Santa Claus?" he asked his parents.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Well, how was it," he asked, "that I saw three of them on the street today?"

This threw the parents, but it didn't interfere with the youngster's having a good time last night.

FOUR MAKE ESCAPE FROM PENITENTIARY

Short-Term Prisoners Saw to Freedom Through Doctor's Office.

TRACKED ACROSS SNOW

Ossining, N. Y., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Four prisoners, all short term men, escaped early tonight from the Eastview Penitentiary near here. Those who escaped were: Peter Reynolds, 30, Yonkers; Ames Clark, 30, Newark; William Rapp, 36, Linden, N. J., and Charles Sirico, 26, New York.

The 225 prisoners at Eastview, which adjoins the Rockefeller Estate, are not locked in their cells ordinarily until 8 p. m. Tonight they had the freedom of the corridors as usual.

The four men made their way to the prison doctor's office, where they sawed their way through the only bars that stood between them and freedom.

The prison doctor's office is on the ground floor adjoining the lower cell block. The men watched their opportunity and slipped into the office, which was unoccupied tonight.

They had been provided with saws, officials stated, and presently had severed the bars that stood between them and the spreading lawns of the institution.

It was a simple matter to step into the yard and dash to liberty. The quartet left a clear trail through three or four inches of new snow, however, over which posses of guards took up the hunt as soon as the break was discovered.

The footprints led away to the northward along the western fringe of the Pocantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller. Eastview is the only property in the whole neighborhood which the Standard Oil millionaire has not acquired for his estate.

Christmas Eve jollity in the prison was rudely shattered when the break was discovered. The prisoners were ordered to their cells and a search of the place for weapons and other articles which might aid in an escape was undertaken.

SHAW SEES HORRORS IN CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

British Satirist Expresses Hatred; Says Children Do Not Believe.

CALLS IT "SILLY GAME"

London, Dec. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—George Bernard Shaw, who has become famous and wealthy by poking fun at the ideas and ideals of the majority, is agin' Christmas, he said today.

He thinks children do not believe in it and he has economic objections to its observance.

"Every child knows the whole thing is only a silly, grown-up game," he said in an interview here today. "I never met a child yet who didn't see through the deception. The murderous thoughts that come into its mind when it sees a sister or brother get a present which it should have itself are dreadful.

"I hate Christmas. The only thing to do with it is to abolish it. Even the most hardened conservative has one thing in common with the Soviet government. They both want to root out the Christmas spirit.

"Christmas is entirely for the benefit of ground landlords. Shopkeepers could never pay such high rents if it wasn't for Christmas, and the ground landlords know it. I've collected rents myself; so I know it, too.

"No one else really likes Christmas. They may get a holiday, but why spoil it with all the horrors of the Christmas spirit? I wish you'd never brought the subject up. It's positively indelicate."

TROOPS JOIN SEARCH FOR KIDNAPED MINER

Bandits in Mexico Believed Seeking Unannounced Ransom Sum.

OFFICIAL WORD WAITED

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Mounted troops tonight were believed in pursuit of bandits reported to have kidnaped Hugh M. Craigie, American mine official from his headquarters, near Santa Barbara, Chihuahua, Mexico.

The bandits are supposed to have retreated with their captive into the wild mountains of the region. Details of the kidnaping and the amount of ransom sought are lacking. Craigie was foreman of the American Smelting & Refining Co. Mines. Officials of the company attempted to communicate with their Santa Barbara properties, however, and indicated developments might be expected.

Efforts were made by Juarez military officials to communicate with Gen. Matias Ramos, commander of Federal troops in the State, for details of the situation. Mrs. Craigie notified the company officials she would remain in Santa Barbara until word came from her husband. Craigie was well known among mining men in Northern Mexico and in El Paso.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE are some commentators, and very astute ones they are, who express the opinion that the Republican Yuletide fracas is but a tempest in a teapot, that a few weeks from now, indeed, after Congress reconvenes when ordinary statements do not get so much newspaper space, will see the matter entirely blown over.

The whole business has been greatly exaggerated, these commentators say. In no sense is it to be compared, they contend, with the Roosevelt-Taft split of 1912 or the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy which preceded it.

In short, these gentlemen argue, it is all a lot of bunk, pure and unadulterated bunk, such bunk being as is well known, an unvarnished, unalloyed bunk, indeed, just a plain, solid, through and through bunk.

• • • •

NOW, of course, they may be right. It may very well be that these warring Republicans have simply entered into the statement-making game which is the great fun of the Nation's Capital, with the enthusiasm with which the kids go into a snowball battle.

It may very well be that by the time 1932 rolls around they will be patting each other on the shoulder and laughing about what a good time they had. There is much in their Republican past to give rise to the belief that this is just what they will do.

BUT we should like to make just this one statement ourself. It is not that we want to get into the statement-making game, but this feeling wells up in us and over it we have no control:

Either the Republicans go through with this thing they have started now, or they will never be worth the front page again.

They have taken their humor a little too far this time. We like fun as much as anyone and can take a lot of things in play. We hope that we do not take things too seriously at all.

• • • •

BUT when any group of men get so unappreciative of the niceties of the season, the spirit of it, and far more important, the working hours which we should like to observe during it; when they become so unfeeling to these things as to stage a mere sham battle then it is time to call a halt.

Either they go through with what they have started now or they will be forever classed as mountebanks, nincompoops and we wish we could think of a lot of other things.

The only satisfaction we get out of having our holidays disarranged is the promise of a real, knock-down and drag out fight. Now you must go through with it, gentlemen, if you want to retain our respect. Even in that event, we can't resist being right mad with you.

What do these Republicans think they are anyway? Little Santa Clauses that one expects to find in his stocking on Christmas morning? Huh, they may be the world and all to their constituents but they are a pain in the neck to us.

PRESIDENT OUT OF PARTY ROW, STATEMENT BY LUCAS INSISTS

his political views, who remained in the party and supported its nominee in 1928, and consequently I am not disposed to reply to the criticisms made of me by them."

This statement caught the Progressives with only one sentinel on duty, Senator Howell. He replied that the opposition to Norris was not limited to Nebraska Republicans, but that "the power interests and their associates sought to put him on the spot, to get him from ambush, through political assassination, if necessary."

Asserting that Lucas would not "openly father" the literature he sent into Nebraska, Howell said "he ordered it expressed anonymously."

"He warned the printer," Howell continued, "that his name should not be divulged, and that there might be no tracer in the form of a check he paid for the literature in cash."

Huston's Case Recalled.

"How little," he said, the transaction differs from that which proved former Chairman Claudius Huston's undoing.

"Propriety, ethics, common sense, the good of the Republican party demand that Mr. Lucas step down and out. But he defiantly says 'I won't,' and apparently they don't dare to put him out. What is the matter, are they sitting on a lid?"

In his subsequent statement, Lucas sought to keep the President out of the fracas by again insisting that "neither the President nor anyone in the White House ever had any knowledge, or were even consulted about, my action in connection with Senator Norris."

Seeking to deal with published reports that the President was standing by him now that the fracas has developed, he said:

Technicality Pointed Out.

"I was appointed by and am solely responsible to the Republican National committee." This is, of course, technically true, but as Senator Watson pointed out, in effect, the President controls the nations' committee. Lucas' second statement read:

"In view of Senator Norris' malicious statement attempting to embarrass the President by fastening upon him the responsibility for my action, I wish to say again that neither the President nor anyone in the White House ever had any knowledge, or were even consulted about, my action in connection with Senator Norris. What I did was solely and emphatically upon my own responsibility, and I was appointed by and am solely responsible to the Republican national committee.

"I also notice Senator Borah's statement this morning. There is the greatest distinction in the world between Senator Borah and Senator Norris. Senator Borah has ably and consistently supported Republican nominees for President; Senator Norris has opposed them. And this is exactly the basis of my opposition to Senator Norris. I have no quarrel with any member of the Republican party, progressives or otherwise, who supports Presidential candidates."

May Win Converts.

It is possible, but not probable, that Lucas may wean away one or two of the progressives with these tactics.

The outlook for the immediate future, however, is that neither side will accomplish anything. If Mr. Hoover continues to stand his ground, that Mr. Lucas is a matter for the national committee to deal with, which is unmistakably true, insofar as the mechanics of the thing is concerned, the progressives can do nothing but shout after Mr. Lucas' scalp, because the national committee will not make a move unless convinced Mr. Hoover wants them to.

On the other hand, Mr. Lucas' demand that Senator Norris be read out of the party will fall on deaf ears among the Senate regulars.

The situation could go on forever this way were it not for the fact that the progressives have it in their power to create so much chaos in the Senate that something will simply have to be done.

Yet there are indications that they intend doing this anyway, and there is no reason to believe the removal of Mr. Lucas would pacify them.

BETHLEHEM LIVES CHRISTMAS STORY

Bethelhem hovered over the young child after it had led the wise men trudging from the East with mighty vision and gifts of frankincense and myrrh.

But long before that hour the pews were crammed and the aisles crowded both with pilgrims from afar and hundreds who live constantly in the atmosphere of the sacred birthplace. It was a friendly throng, whispering back and forth and watching everything with eager interest, munching provisions brought in paper bundles.

When the service began a hush fell over the congregation. All was reverence as the colorful ritual unfolded to the accompaniment of a choir of Franciscan monks.

Just before midnight a warning bell rang softly and the solemn words of the consecration ended as the tower chime began to toll the hour. The priests pulled the silken cords, withdrawing the curtain from the tabernacle, revealing a doll representing the babe of Bethlehem.

The organ thundered and the voices of the choir rang out in sonorous Latin; "Blessed be he who comes in the name of the Lord; Hosana in Excelsis;" it was Christmas Day.

His beatitude, Mgr. Louis Barlassina, Latin patriarch of Jerusalem, reverently lifted the bambino and, as Mary did with the Christ child 1930 years ago, wrapped it in swaddling clothes and placed it in the manger.

The crowd filed out of the church, the faces of the worshipers lighted with the beauty and symbolism of the pageant they had seen. They called to each other in hushed greetings and dispersed into the night. The darkness of the night in the same spot that the angel of the Lord said on the first Christmas Day: "Fear not, for I bring you good tidings of great joy."

Martinson didn't file for the office or for any office. None had filed for the job and he was chosen by a complimentary vote which totaled eleven ballots. Other ballots included a vote cast for Herbert Hoover as court commissioner and one for Andrew Mellon as county treasurer.

odd jobs are being created by intensive cleanup campaigns, in which unsightly vacant lots are receiving the care of parks.

Several cities are allowing the unemployed to sell apples or other staples on street corners, without license. At least one ice-covered State is for the first time sprinkling sand on its roads that heads of families may win their bread.

A few States find existing charity agencies can care for the idle. Some others are registering unemployed individuals and finding them work or furnishing them relief. Others are using labor on a part-time basis, in road work and by this means adding thousands to the pay rolls.

From at least one State—Oklahoma—comes news that development alone necessitates one of the greatest building programs in its history, and Texas, sending forth pipe lines to the Middle West and rails toward the Rockies, finds itself in similar position.

San Francisco "Fakes" White-Garb Christmas

San Francisco, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—San Francisco is to have its first white Christmas.

The ground won't be covered with snow, but it will look something like it. Evergreen wreaths, trees and stringers along a mile or two of Market street and other downtown thoroughfares have been frosted white to represent snow.

In other years the decorative scheme has been the customary green and red.

CLARENDON LIGHTS COMMUNITY TREE

Klan in Arlington County Also Ushers In Yule, Using Fiery Cross.

SANTA LIBERAL TO POOR

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The flashing of hundreds of many-hued electric lights on the huge Christmas tree in the circle on Wilson boulevard at Washington and Clarendon avenues, Clarendon, placed there by Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, and carols by choirs of the several churches in the community, under the leadership of Harold M. Brown, of Cherrydale, ushered in the yuletide season in Arlington County last night.

Stainer's Communion Service was sung at midnight services conducted by the Rev. Henry J. Miller at St. George's Episcopal Church.

Homes of the poor of Arlington County were brightened with the arrival of Santa Claus armed with gifts for the little ones and large baskets filled with provisions for Christmas dinner.

The baskets and other gifts were made possible through cooperation of the county churches, business men and fraternal organizations. The baskets were delivered in a truck and two automobiles, under supervision of Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of the public welfare board.

Members of the Ballston Klan, No. 6, met on their field in Ballston at Wilson boulevard and Clements avenue and under the blaze of a huge illuminated cross toured the county, visiting more than 75 homes, and leaving large baskets filled with toys, clothing and food for Christmas.

Completing their work, the Klansmen met in various sections of the county and at a late hour ushered in the yuletide by setting up more than 25 huge firey crosses.

G. Frank Allwine, of the Jefferson District Fire Department, was elected president of the Arlington, Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association at its annual meeting last night in the Ballston firemen's hall. Other officers elected were: John A. Dawkins, Arlington fire department, secretary-treasurer; Edwin B. Chapman, Cherrydale fire department, treasurer of the relief fund; Albert C. Scheffel, Arlington fire department, county fire marshal.

The association went on record as opposed to the appointment of a county fire chief by the board of supervisors at this time. Strong indorsement was given the plan to install a general fire-alarm switchboard.

A check for $500 was received from the association auxiliary as its gift to the firemen's relief fund from the recent carnival. A rising vote of thanks was given women.

Edwin B. Chapman, chairman in charge of the arrangements for the annual memorial services for firemen, announced the services would be conducted Sunday afternoon, January 4, at the Cherrydale Methodist Protestant Church, by the Rev. John A. Trador. Harold M. Brown will direct the music.

With the closing of the county schools, Deputy Sheriff Archie Richards, who, this year, has directed traffic in front of the Woodrow Wilson School at Fort Myer Heights, played the part of Santa Clause to the pupils. He greeted them around a huge Christmas tree and gave each child a gift and a large bag of candy and fruit.

CHARTER IS ISSUED TO NEW GUN CLUB

Goose Creek Project Leases 10,000 Acres and Has $50,000 Capital.

GRAYSON IS PRESIDENT

Incorporation of the Goose Creek Gun Club, which has leased some 10,000 acres for hunting purposes near Leesburg, Va., and has capitalized at $50,000, was announced here last night by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, its president.

Yesterday the State Corporation Commission of Virginia issued the club a charter. Admiral Grayson said the club has only "four or five" members at present, but plans to expand after the project gets under way.

According to Admiral Grayson, former personal physician to President Wilson, the club has purchased three ancient log cabins, removing them to the 10,000-acre tract between Oatlands and Arcola, Va.

These will be used as headquarters for hunting excursions into the nearby woods, where quail, pheasant and wild turkey abound, and for hunting expeditions to Goose Creek. No attempt will be made to modernize the cabins, which will use oil lamps instead of electricity, and rely for heat on an open fireplace.

Associated with Admiral Grayson in the club at present are Miss Charlotte Noland, who conducts the exclusive Foxcroft School for Girls; D. C. Sands, of Middleburg, Va., and Oliver Iselen, who lives near Middleburg. W. A. Metzer, of Leesburg, is attorney.

Girl Dies of Wound Inflicted by Herself

Quarrel With Man Friend Blamed for Shooting by Young Housekeeper.

Miss Louise B. Sullivan, 21 years old, employed as housekeeper by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Young, who shot and wounded herself last week at the Young home, died yesterday at Montgomery County General Hospital, of congestion of the lungs. Her mother and the Rev. Bertram M. Osgood, pastor of the Rockville Baptist Church, were at the bedside when she died.

The girl is believed by police to have been despondent because of a quarrel with a man friend the night previous to the shooting. No inquest is believed necessary by police, in view of a note in her handwriting which was found after the shooting and which stated that she was tired of living and wishing a Merry Christmas to her employers.

The girl was found by neighbors who responded to her screams and found a gaping wound in her abdomen and a shotgun nearby. She was hurried to the Montgomery County General Hospital.

Colorado Bootlegger Sentenced 8 Years

Denver, Dec. 24.—Caesar Bogileno, of Durango, Colo., asserted bootlegger king of southwestern Colorado, received one of the severest sentences ever given a liquor offender in Federal district court here. Bogileno was sentenced to five years in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and fined $1,000 after being convicted of manufacture of liquor.

He was also sentenced to three years at Leavenworth and fined $500 by Judge Foster Symes on charges of attempted bribery of a prohibition agent. The two sentences will run concurrently.

Bogileno was convicted on the two charges in Pueblo in 1929. After he was arrested, he allegedly offered Sam Brown, dry agent, $400 to have the charges dropped.

Two Negro children, Sarah Miles, 6 years old, and Charles Miles, 12, were rescued from their burning home at 6:40 o'clock yesterday morning by Policeman Hicks. The house, 310 North Fairfax street, was ruined by the flames, and the father of the children, Charles Miles, also lost $115 in paper money he had hidden in the house. Water froze on the firemen's coats and helmets as they worked over the flames. The damage is estimated as around $1,500 and $2,000 and the house is owned by Mrs. John Lalley, of Washington.

Gary Citizens Observe Various Christmases

Gary, Ind., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—In the "melting pot" city of Gary, Christmas will have almost as many varieties of observance as there are nationalities, 40 or more. For the Slavs, the Latins and southeastern Europeans great attention will be paid to religious observance.

Felipe Cortez, a Mexican of Spanish extraction, will have a "posada," or box representing the stable where Christ was born. Tiny figures of the Holy Family, the Magi, their donkeys and camels will dot the box. It is an old Spanish custom the Cortez have not dropped.

Says Life in Deep Sea Is Affected by Sunlight

La Jolla, Calif., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Sunlight influences life even in the deep sea, says Prof. W. E. Allen, of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. Diatoms, minute living creatures of delicate color and beautiful forms, are more spiny and slender at considerable depths, he says, than those living nearer the surface.

Prof. Allen holds that this attenuated form is a response to the feeble light, being the form affording the best conditions for absorbing the energy of light.

FORD RUBBER FARM SCENE OF DISORDER

Efforts to Evict Settlers in Expansion Program Bring Resentment.

TROOPS SENT BY PLANE

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Private advices and news agency dispatches report that trouble over an eviction order broke out on the Ford rubber plantation in Para yesterday, with the government of that vast northern state sending police by airplane to investigate.

The authorities requisitioned a Pan-American Airways plane, it was said. Yesterday afternoon the machine reached Santarem Junction, on the Amazon, and this morning went on to the plantation, which is on the Tapajos River.

As the trouble is explained, the concession included certain land already occupied when it was granted by the state.

The news agency says the Ford authorities recently gave notice that certain holdings, among which is an orphan asylum, must be evacuated before December 31, as the plantation was expanding to take in that area.

The irate settlers thereupon marched upon Ford headquarters, armed with guns and other weapons, determined to halt the move to evict them from their homes. When word of the incident reached Para, which is the capital, the authorities commandeered the airplane so police might quell the trouble and endeavor to bring about an agreement.

The movement is said to be in no way connected with recent attacks by Indians upon certain villages.

Policeman Slain In Bank Robbery

Peers In as Holdup Is Going On and Is Shot; Four Get $3,500 Loot.

New Orleans, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Bandits made two raids on banks here today, four escaping with $3,500 in one holdup. The other robbery being frustrated. Two men were jailed after a policeman had been fatally wounded.

Four men held up employes and patrons of the Dryade Branch of the Hiberna Bank and escaped with $3,500 in what apparently was a well-planned robbery.

Later two men tied his hands at the Rocheblave branch of the Canal Bank and Trust Co. While one threatened employes with two guns the other took money from the tellers' cages.

Policeman Earnest Grillot happened to peer into the bank. The gunman fired two bullets at him at close range, inflicting mortal wounds. The killer jumped into a passing automobile. His confederate dropped the money and tried to flee but was felled by a man who had just entered. A young man believed to have been the other robber also was captured.

Van of Yule Gifts Is Taken by Thugs

Three Robbers, Detective and Girl, 6, Wounded in Gun Battle.

New York, Dec. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A detective tried to halt the robbery of a truck laden with Christmas gifts in Brooklyn today with the result that he was shot, three of the gunmen were wounded in making their escape, and a 6-year-old girl, caught in the line of crossfire, was wounded in the leg.

Detective Joseph Meenahan, returning from his lunch hour, was attracted by the suspicious action of the men near the truck. Crossing the street, he was met by a fusillade before he could reach them.

Struck in the left leg, he jerked out his revolver and fired six shots at the truck, toppling one of the bandits on the running board, before the vehicle could gain speed. It later developed that he had wounded two more of the gunmen. Both of these injured men were arrested.

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Despite three failures at renting a hall for the purpose, the Young Pioneers of New York, children's wing of the Communist party, planned to conduct an antireligious circus tomorrow to lay low the legend of Santa Claus.

Leaders said the event, to be held in front of the Central Opera House, would be part of a world-wide program to "expose the religious bunk of the bosses."

The group preceded the affair with a dance tonight at the New Harlem Casino, at the hour when churches of the city were holding special Christmas services.

STEADY ADVERTISING HELD ADVANTAGEOUS

Leaders in Business Express Faith in Continuity of Publicity Program.

CITE LONG EXPERIENCE

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Faith in the success of continued advertising through periods of boom and depression is expressed by several leading advertisers in the current issue of Printers Ink, advertising publication.

"What is the real value of continued advertising effort?" the publication asked.

J. L. Johnson, president of the Lambert Pharmacal Co., replied: "Our opinion of the importance of continuity of advertising effort is shown by the ten-year record of our advertising expenditures."

J. A. Zehntbauer, president of the Janzen Knitting Mills, Inc., answered: "Our experience is thoroughly convincing as to the necessity of advertising continuity. * * * In increasing our advertising outlay for 1931 we believe that we are sowing the seed of future volume and profits."

Louis M. Wheelock, vice president Stephen F. Whitman & Son, said: "We believe in advertising all the time. * * * Advertising just now is an expression of confidence in one's product and the future of America."

C. R. Palmer, president of Cluet, Peabody & Co., Inc., said: "In my opinion the one sure way to make advertising count is to see that it is continuous."

Governor Is Delighted By Paroled Man's Card

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 24 (A.P.)—Gov. Bibb Graves looked through his Christmas cards, stacked high upon his desk.

Richly decorated scrolls, silver and gold fantasies, and some of quiet simplicity from other State executives.

"Here's the one I most appreciated," he said.

It was from a plumber the governor paroled a year ago. It bore the postmark of a Southwestern town. On cheap, rough paper was this inscription:

"Back on my feet, thanks to you."

THE ONLY HONEST MAN.

Certain senators who wish to retain a couple of subordinates in the Federal Power Commission are up in arms because the new commission has dismissed these agents. It is now proposed to reconsider the vote by which the commissioners were confirmed, in order to unseat them.

Evidently the new commission wishes to carry on its work solely in the public interest, unhampered by squabbling and friction among subordinates. This policy does not suit senators who wish to control the commission, dictate its decisions, and prevent it from reaching independent conclusions and decisions.

Here is an opportunity for Mr. Hoover to assert his authority as President of the United States.

It may be that a combination of senators can be formed to nullify the confirmation of the new commissioners. Such a combination was successful last year in bringing about the rejection of nominees. It was unsuccessful in attacking Charles E. Hughes, nominated to be Chief Justice of the United States, although eleven renegade Republicans joined many Democrats in the attempt. Among those who voted to reject Mr. Hughes was that sole repository of public honesty, Mr. Norris, of Nebraska. He could not trust Mr. Hughes.

The law creating the new Federal Power Commission gives the commissioners some authority, but the senators who now find that they can not use the commission for their own purposes are dissatisfied with the arrangement. They can not change the law, but they hope to retain a hold upon the commission by preventing the appointment of any commissioner who is not subservient to their will.

The Senate would present a sorry spectacle to the country, indeed, if it should now unseat commissioners whose only crime is that they refuse to take orders from a coterie of senators.

The virtuous Senator Norris announces that the commissioners would not have been confirmed if it had been known that they would dismiss the subordinates in question. What the senator from Nebraska desires, evidently, is a Federal Power Commission which will take orders from the only honest man in the United States. Mr. Norris has strongly hinted that President Hoover is a tool of the "power trust." So Mr. Hoover can not be trusted, and, of course, his nominations to public office are presumptively corrupt. Didn't he name Charles E. Hughes to be Chief Justice of the United States and actually get away with it?

A few renegades and Democrats will assist Senator Norris in the attempt to prevent the creation of an independent Federal Power Commission. So long as they cooperate with him they will be adjudged honest by him—tolerably honest, sufficiently so to associate with him. But if they should fall victims to the hallucination that there is any honor in the President of the United States, and be disposed to support the President's nominees, they will become suspects also, and the country will then perceive that, after all, there is only one Simon-pure honest man in the country. This great truth will come out, in spite of all detraction. It will be announced by none other than the honest man himself.

FOREIGN COMMERCE GROWING.

Improvement of the foreign trade situation may be noted from several quarters. American exports of manufactured goods, according to an analysis by the United States Chamber of Commerce, were only 4 per cent below the five-year average during the third quarter of 1930. These figures are based on value. Since prices have declined radically during the last year it is probable that manufactured exports for the year will surpass the five-year average in volume.

The decline in total value of exports may be accounted for largely by the decrease in price and smaller purchases of raw materials and luxuries. This total is only 17 per cent lower than the five-year average, however, and commodity prices have declined nearly that much. The Chamber of Commerce notes a decided improvement of international trade during the last months of the third quarter.

A recent statement by Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee, showed that imports have been making steady gains ever since the tariff law was enacted. Imports make a better showing than exports, apparently because the purchasing power of America has been maintained better than that of any other country.

Foreign commerce will regain its lost momentum as soon as the normal purchasing power of the world has been restored. The fact that commerce is now gaining in volume contributes to the hope that the worst of the depression is over.

Since the position of American industry has been strengthened in its home market and the country is making an effort to build up a strong merchant marine, the United States has excellent prospects of extending its foreign commerce. Before the effects of the depression have disappeared the volume of exports and imports may exceed that for the record year of 1929.

THE PENNSYLVANIA SENATORSHIP.

The "revelations" emanating from Washington which have resulted in flaring headlines announcing that "Davis Campaign Cost $640,000," and intimating that as much as $1,000,000 may have been expended in the primary and election campaign of Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, are so palpably absurd that they call for correction or denial by the Nye committee.

No political opponent of Senator Davis has been guilty of making statements of this gross and libelous character.

The funds contributed to the campaigns in Pennsylvania were applied to the entire ticket, except when contributors directed otherwise. The ticket carried candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, 36 members of Congress, 28 State senators, 250 members of the State House of Representatives, and more than 8,000 committeemen. Some of the contributions were made on the proviso that "none of this donation shall be used specifically to aid the candidacy of James J. Davis." The Nye committee hearings show that contributions by Secretary Mellon and others were earmarked exclusively for promotion of the candidacy of Francis Shunk Brown for governor.

It was common knowledge both in and out of Pennsylvania that Senator Davis' election was a foregone conclusion. There was no necessity for the expenditure of large sums of money in advertising his candidacy. The struggle did not center about the senatorship. Some of the most intense battles, in which considerable money was expended, involved local committee places.

What is the purpose of misleading reports in connection with the Pennsylvania senatorship?

MUSCLE SHOALS QUACKERY.

Efforts to bring about a compromise on Muscle Shoals apparently have failed. Since Congress reassembled the House conferees have been energetic in trying to promote an agreement that would be acceptable to both branches of Congress and to President Hoover. But the Senate delegation remains adamant. So the issue remains at a deadlock as hopeless as ever before.

The Norris resolution passed by the Senate would create a corporation to put the Government in the power business. It would authorize this corporation to construct transmission lines and engage in competition with private interests in the power business. Production of materials for national defense and fertilizer, for which the huge plants at Muscle Shoals were built, would be sacrificed to the Government's power operations. The plain intent of this bill is not to make economical use of the nitrate plants, but to launch a socialistic project with a view to Government operation of the power industry.

On the other hand, the House bill provides for lease of the plants, and sale of only such power as is not needed in operation of the nitrate plants. This bill is an attempt to make use of the Muscle Shoals project in a legitimate way without putting the Government into business. It would insure the manufacture of nitrate for the benefit of agriculture and for national defense, as was originally intended by Congress.

In its effort to dispose of the issue the House conferees offered the Senate a liberal compromise. They drew up a substitute bill, providing that the Government operate the dam and power generating facilities; that the Government lease the nitrate plants, making liberal provisions for the manufacture of fertilizer, &c.; that the Government sell power at the switchboard, giving preference to States, counties and municipalities; and that the Government build Cove Creek storage dam. The House conferees have conceded almost everything, except the right of the Government to build power transmission lines in competition with private enterprise. This proposed compromise concedes most of the demands of the Senate.

Nevertheless, the Senate refuses to yield. Senator Norris, author of the Senate's proposed venture in socialism, has brought forth a ridiculous "compromise" of his own. Without changing any essential feature of his bill, he would allow the Government a six-months' period in which to lease the nitrate plants, providing that they be subject to Government operation if a satisfactory lessee can not be found. Since the Norris bill contains restrictions that would make such a lease impossible, his gesture is an insult to the intelligence of the House and the President.

Once before the House yielded to this quackery in an effort to dispose of the issue. But Mr. Norris' socialistic project was vetoed by President Coolidge. If the House falls down again, President Hoover may be expected to veto the Norris bill.

No practical-minded congressman can subscribe to the theory that the Norris scheme would dispose of the issue involved. The true issue—that of the Government going into business in competition with its own citizens—would be accentuated, with the advocates of socialism in a position of advantage. If the Republican party in the House violates the pledge it made to the American people in its last national platform it will be made ridiculous before the whole country, and the President will have another opportunity to score a popular victory over Congress.

CHEAP BOOKS.

A few months ago a group of publishing firms announced plans to reduce the price of books. Their project attracted widespread interest. Educators were enthusiastic over the prospect of getting a better class of literature before the public at very moderate cost. In some quarters a revolution in the publishing business was forecast.

After a brief trial it appears that the cheap book scheme is not a success. The public has not responded as was expected. Somehow there is still a preference for books that cost $2.50 or more, on the assumption that they are worth something. Apparently the $1 books are suspected of inferiority.

If this attitude on the part of the public persists it will probably mean the failure of the cheap book distribution scheme. It is obvious that one group of publishing houses can not sell books of high quality at less than half the price that is received by the majority of publishers for a similar quality of literature. The cheap book venture depends upon mass production and distribution for its success. If the public shows no marked preference for the $1 books their fate seems to be sealed.

It is possible, however, that the public has not been sufficiently acquainted with the $1 book plan. It has been in operation for only a few months. That is hardly enough time to allow for people to change their habits in buying books. It is safe to assume that many millions of Americans who are interested in the purchase of books know nothing of the plan. Regardless of what sales have been to date, the venture can hardly be called a failure until a complete test breaks it down.

The experiment is particularly interesting because of what it reveals as to choice of literature in America. Do people judge the value of a book by what it costs? Do the name of the author and the title of the book mean less than the price? Does a person get more enjoyment out of reading a $5 book than a $1 book? The literary man may throw up his hands in horror at these suggestions, but the business man can not ignore them. The ultimate success of the cheap book venture seems to hinge on how the public answers these queries.

FREAK WARSHIPS

By FLETCHER PRATT, in Naval Institute Proceedings.

"These admirals of mine," said Napoleon in a moment of not unjustifiable irritation over the rat-chased-by-a-cat strategy of Linois and Missiessy, "These admirals of mine have discovered something new. They have found out that war can be made without running risks."

This discovery is one of the hardy perennials of naval warfare. Among the French admirals it took the unusual form of a new brand of strategy; but it more often appears as a new and fearful warship, which shall sweep the navies of the world into the scrap heap at a blow. Needless to say, it is generally a landsman who makes the discovery.

Most of these great ideas have died in the paper stage (if you believe the inventors, because of the machinations of rivals), but every so often one gets itself worked up into an actual, visible warship, another of those astonishing monstrosities which, perhaps more than anything else, demonstrate the vagaries of which the human intelligence is capable.

Right at the beginning it is worth while admitting that freak warships sometimes succeed. The monitor was a freak; Holland No. 9 was a freak; so was the Dreadnought and (to go back) the Constant Warwick, first of frigates. The answer is that in this study, necessarily brief, we shall draw a wholly invidious distinction between freak ships that have succeeded and those that have failed, and confine our attention to the latter. The successes have left obvious marks on naval construction of today; it is only when we say that the failures also have interest and importance that we get into a region where proof is required.

Ptolemy Philopator of Egypt, with one of the finest navies of the ancient world, built the first freak—or rather his ministers built it, since he was too fond of the wine cup and the harem to give serious attention to anything else. A naval architect named Pyrgoteles seems to have been behind it. The ordinary battleship of the age was the quinquireme, with five banks of oars. Demetrius the Besieger had built an eleven-bank monster (which was duly captured in its first engagement) and in Rhodes and Phoenicia ships nearly as large had been produced.

Pyrgoteles' idea was to outdo all other navies at one fell swoop by constructing a ship with 30 banks of oars, one above the other, which should be immune to attack from her very size, and should crush all opposition by her very weight. His ship was, we are told, 480 feet in length, had a beam of 57 feet, and towered 72 feet up from the water's edge. It took 4,000 rowers to move the vessel, those in the upper banks handling counterbalanced oars nearly 90 feet in length.

Like other ships in ancient times, she was built on land. Now it was a job to get the ordinary quinquireme to water, even with unlimited slave labor, and for this giant it appeared a flat impossibility. By an exercise of ingenuity worthy of admiration even in this mechanical age, an unnamed Phoenician accomplished it. He dug under the huge ship a trench, making a small section at a time, and carrying the weight of the ship on crossbeams supported by piles. As the trench became deep enough the piles were replaced with stone pillars. The end of the trench was provided with a lock gate; when it was complete a channel was dug to the ocean and the big ship warped out. Naturally, she could not be hauled up on shore at the end of a cruise, like other ancient war vessels, so she was brought back to the place of her construction, floated in, the lock gate closed and the water pumped out—thus leaving her in the first dry dock on record.

Merry Christmas!

SHORT CIRCUITS.

The Sooner the Happier.

London Opinion: A dramatic critic says that he always prefers a play which has a happy ending. With some plays we've seen any sort of ending would be a happy one.

One Good Turn, &c.

Wheeling Register: Fines levied against the Massachusetts bootleggers have been reduced because of the business depression. Turn about is fair play—the booties have cut their prices.

Premature.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: That chap with a smug smile of satisfaction has done his Christmas shopping early. But wait until about the 23d, when he begins to remember the things he forgot.

Device and Mazuma.

Boston Herald: A geographical note says that when the Dalai Llama gets his new automobile going in Thibet, he won't need the yak any more. Nope. What he'll need will be the jack.

Bumper Needed.

Kansas City Star: Heywood Broun, who ran so far back that he wasn't even mentioned in the dispatches election night, says what he needs for political success is a machine, and he will start building one immediately. It is difficult to say what part of the machine Mr. Broun should obtain first—a muffler or a rear bumper.

TRACING THE BULLET TO THE GUN.

Testimony and evidence offered in a current trial in Brooklyn, the Sumner murder case, bring the revelation of the possibility of identifying bullets fired from a certain pistol as means for the conviction of a criminal.

In connection with the efforts made to obtain and to prevent the pardoning of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts several bullet experts emerged into Nation-wide notice, says the Brooklyn Eagle. One expert found that the murder bullet in that case had been fired from a gun in the possession of one of the defendants. To what extent that finding influenced the disposal of the case one can not easily determine, but in any event the effect was upon the proceedings subsequent to the trial itself.

Disputed handwriting, the telltale fingerprints so prominent in fiction and all like means of identification requiring the estimation of experts have much in common. The attitude of the public toward their asserted power for conviction is in gradual process of formation. And as the public feels about such things, so in great measure will juries feel also.

JUST FOLKS

CHRISTMAS DAY.

Here's Christmas day. God grant it be
A happy day for high and low,
For strangers and the friends we know,
For men who take the ships to sea;
May health and hope return again
To sufferers on beds of pain.

A Christmas wish! How narrow seems
The prayer that's spoken for a friend,
When this old world, from end to end
With loneliness and anguish teems.
God strengthens mortals everywhere
Whose tasks seem more than they can bear.

Shine out, oh star of Bthlehem,
Earth wide where mortals blindly grope!
Relight the flickering torch of hope;
Restore the faltering faith in them
And let them find beyond the strife
The little joys which sweeten life.

May the Lord's blessings richly fall
On young and old this happy day,
Or near at home, or far away,
A Merry Christmas, one and all!
Whatever tempests rage outside,
May peace in every heart abide.

When a King Surrenders His Throne, He Is Judged by His Wits and His Muscle.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

FOR thousands of years the world has been content with the belief that man's superiority to brutes is clearly established by his ability to reason.

The belief hasn't escaped criticism, for it is an assumption and not an explanation. It has little support except human vanity. It is similar to the small boy's assumption that a tree doesn't grow because he can't see it growing.

A much better distinction is the one suggested by Sir James Jeans: that the chief difference between man and beast is found in man's intellectual cruiosity.

This quality not only distinguishes men from the lower animals, but serves as a standard of measurement to reveal the degree of each man's superiority to the jungle creatures.

Those who have a keen and insatiable appetite for knowledge are far removed from the beasts; those who are content to live in complete ignorance are so near the beast that their resemblance to civilized men is all that affords evidence of superiority.

Intellectual curiosity—the desire to know—is every normal man's heritage. The child has it in abundance. In a world full of mysteries, its eager curiosity hungers and thirsts for knowledge. "Why" is the busiest word in its limited vocabulary.

Left to develop naturally, the child might retain its intellectual curiosity through adolescence and early manhood, but it is rebuked or discouraged by explanations that do not explain, and eventually is made to understand that it must be content with the degree of ignorance common to its class to escape the charge of heresy or insanity.

The exceptional child rebels. Disgusted by the superficial "education" offered in the schools, it sets forth alone to find the truth. Edison was one of the rebels. His mind was eager for facts the schools could not supply.

The chief fault of modern "education" is that it offers a little as the whole and sends its victim into the world handicapped by the delusion that he knows it all. His growth stops because his intellectual curiosity is satisfied; vanity fostered by his instructors robs him of his natural appetite for knowledge; and he goes through life content in ignorance, without further acquaintance with books, his mind shackled by the belief that he is "educated."

When intellectual curiosity ends, man has taken his last step in the march of civilization. This much distance he has placed between himself and the beasts, and here he stops. The future offers no further expansion except of his waist.

Wherein is man superior to his dog if he discards the one quality his dog doesn't possess?

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Backfire Hits Norris.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Evidence unearthed by the Nye campaign expenditures investigating committee points to activity on the part of the Republican national committee against Senator Norris in his primary campaign in Nebraska last summer. The senator has been making charges to this effect, and professing to be greatly shocked at such conduct on the part of the regular organization. But, why should the senator object? As a matter of fact, what right has he to be running in a Republican primary, anyway? The only time he makes any pretense of being a Republican is when he wants to get on the Republican ballot in an election. Between times, he boasts of his independence, and practices it with a vengeance. He stumped Pennsylvania against the Republican candidate for senator. He bolted Hoover and supported Smith in 1928. He has opposed Hoover on almost every policy, as he has opposed policies of former Republican Presidents. Just why a chronic insurgent, a man who knifes his party at every opportunity, should feel hurt when he fails to receive regular support in his campaign for reelection, isn't quite clear.

Worrying Over the Enemy.

New York World.

Cutting across the interests and the loyalties of all three of these factions, still further complicating the outlook for the Republican party in 1932, is the dominant and disturbing issue of prohibition.

"Jobs" in Sight.

Indianapolis News.

That $700,000,000 of Federal money to be spent on public works next year will give many a fellow a job, and probably not a few fellows a "job."

Mr. Legge Goes Heflin.

New York Herald Tribune.

In filing his first accounting of the expenditures of the Federal Farm Board, on Thursday, Alexander Legge, chairman of that organization, took occasion to urge upon Congress the need for "strict governmental regulation of all exchanges dealing in agricultural commodities." "At present," Mr. Legge declares, "exchange rules and regulations are built up by the traders themselves. They are not in the interests of the producers or the consumers."

How far from sound concepts Mr. Legge's wanderings over the last year and a half in the maze of "farm relief" have carried him is eloquently revealed in the above observation. His threat to impose Government regulation on commodity exchanges is nothing less than a manifestation of bureaucratic irritation over the failure of his program thus far. Bureaucracy is following its traditional course. When milder measures fail because of fundamental unsoundness, the next step is the imposition of more vigorous methods. Unable to bring about commodity stabilization through the support of the United States Treasury, Mr. Legge now proposes to invoke governmental despotism in his mad cause.

Charging Off Bad Debts.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

There is a widespread feeling among Republicans that this threatened open split in the party had to come some time. Every business man reaches the point where he has to charge off bad debts. The insurgents are party liabilities, not assets.

Republican for Office Sake.

New York Times.

Senator Borah is a quadrennial Republican.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Pennsylvania Farmer Wants to Know Whether There Will Be an Accounting of Taxpayers' Money Spent for Relief.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I claim it a privilege to indorse the position of Secretary Hyde on the "dole" appropriation. The country seems to have gone wild on the relief problem. Small towns in all parts of the Union are organizing for feeding the needy and the unemployed. Granting the acuteness of the jobless situation, it must also be remembered as a statistical fact that in normal times America generally counts 500,000 workers among the unemployed, but they are not out of employment from necessity.

The "slump" is a condition that must right itself by the natural law of consumption and production. Quoting from Secretary Hyde's report, "Agricultural overproduction existed before the business depression began and agriculture's difficulties are attributable to conditions outside agricultural industry."

One may speak specifically, because in some States there has been an increased valuation of property which has hit the farm owners disastrously with an increase of taxes. Officials have increased their own salaries to meet "living costs." In some States new penalties for nonpayment of taxes have been put upon the statute books. For example, in the State of Pennsylvania the first tax penalty goes on a few months after the first tax notice is sent out, then two months later, the tax not being paid, a second penalty is assessed and after six months the property may be sold for taxes. The sheriffs' sales of property make a longer list in the present business slump than ever before.

It is a mighty gesture to give many millions for drought relief. It is a most commendable spirit of generous and emotional charity, but there is something else to consider, and that is the dispensing and distribution of this wonderful sum of money. Will there be an accounting of who are the beneficiaries? Will each State, each district, each county and township be tabulated and reported when it benefits in the distribution? These are natural questions from the public, because it is taxpayers' money that is to be given out.

It is the opinion of many economists that the farmer can pull through without a dole and if he will stick to his old program and his forefather's program of industry and thrift and turn his back on meddling politicians he will come out ahead of every other industry.

PENNSYLVANIA FARMER.

Gorgeous Dream of Unemployment Banished by Busy Nation Making Beer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the Volstead law were to be amended, permitting the sale and use of beer, it would mean the employing of 100,000 carpenters, bricklayers and laborers to build and refit breweries. Also 50,000 brewery truck drivers, helpers, vatmen and coppersmiths would have to be hired. Spray equipment manufacturers would immediately hire 20,000 men to make barrel painting machines and 100,000 printers would be put to work printing beer labels. It would also be necessary for bottle works and barrel makers to engage thousands more, besides the great number of bookkeepers, stenographers, clerks and salesmen who would find ready work.

Instead of the farmers remaining in the city seeking employment, they would return to their farms to till the soil and raise hops and barley, which would be in great demand. The price of grain and produce would take a leap, which would give the farmer the first real break that he has had in years. The beer gardens would return, hence the necessity of about 150,000 musicians to provide music and thousands of unemployed actors could become singing waiters and waitresses. Unemployment would be a thing of the past if the Volstead law were to be amended, permitting the sale of beer.

DREAMER.

Was for Al Smith for President, but Now Thinks Hoover Is the Right Man for the Emergency.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is well-nigh impossible to estimate the number of years cut from the lives of our most illustrious executives by the presidential work. In recent years the toll has been appalling. Wilson and Harding are notable examples, typical of the ever-increasing strain placed on the shoulders of the President. Every one knows, or should know, what happened to them, and every one should know that President Hoover is going through a period of greater internal unrest and discontent than the Nation has ever encountered. Hoover is pacing the White House floors at night, just as did Lincoln, in an effort to discover a quicker solution to the present-day trouble.

Therefore, duty to our country, our homes, our fellow men, demands that we give our Government support, our utmost support, in its efforts to solve the mighty problems that face it today. Herbert Hoover is the man called for just such a time as this, the one man trained to cope successfully with the conditions. We believed that Al Smith was the man for the Presidency, but now we are for Hoover.

Tribute of a Grateful Patient to Nurses of Garfield Hospital.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After four months' illness, at Garfield Hospital, I have learned what the terms service, love, devotion to duty and mercy mean.

During this long period, twenty-five stripers, nurses on their first year of training, and ten blue dress (novices) have served me. At first my body was racked with pain and I could hardly bear to have them touch me, but the kindly way in which I was handled and the sympathy with which the tasks were performed by these angels of mercy inspires me with the sort of eulogy which one can not write, so my wish is, God bless the nurses at Garfield Hospital! This is my Christmas sentiment.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Denbys, Back From Russia, Visit Senator

Daughter and Son-in-Law Are Welcomed in Reed Home.

SENATOR AND MRS. DAVID H. REED, who only recently took possession of their new residence in what might be called "official row" on S street, have just welcomed home their daughter, Mrs. Charles Denby, jr., who, with her young husband, has been visiting in Russia. An absentee for some time, news of Mrs. Denby's return will be eagerly received in the Capital, where she has many friends. Mrs. Denby, who was formerly Rosamond Reed, made her bow to Washington society about five years ago, and, after several gay seasons in Washington, was married to Mr. Denby. The Reeds were then making their home on Eighteenth street, where their daughter's debut party and her wedding were held. The social scene in Washington shifts frequently, and in Mrs. Denby's case her marriage took her away from the Capital.

Mr. Denby, who is a lawyer, went to Moscow on behalf of a client. Mrs. Denby, incidentally, has a unique international background, and is well fitted for any amount of travel which her husband, in pursuit of his career, is required to undertake.

After leaving a finished school in Connecticut, she spent a year in Florence, Italy, and then was graduated with honors from the Sorbonne, in France. She speaks Italian and French with the fluency of English, and now has acquired a bit of conversational Russian.

The house which Senator and Mrs. Reed have been occupying at 1904 R street has been taken again by the owners, Dr. C. A. Richmond, president emeritus of Union College at Schenectady, N. Y., and Mrs. Richmond, after an extended trip around the world. Dr. and Mrs. Richmond leased the house, purchased a year or so ago, to Senator David A. Reed, who lived there during the session of Congress last winter.

Dr. and Mrs. Richmond enjoyed a trip of unusual interest, visiting "places that nobody goes to." After a prolonged visit in St. Andrews, Scotland, they set out for Austria and the Balkan countries, later motoring through Greece, with delightful days in the Aegean Islands and the Near East. After a trip to Egypt Dr. and Mrs. Richmond visited their son-in-law and daughter, Col. and Mrs. C. M. Hawes, in Jhellum, India, going later to the Vale of Kashmir. In the Far East they took trips through Korea and Manchuria, Japan and Hawaii.

Mr. Allan Hoover will be one of the guests at the Midshipmen and Cadet Ball tonight at the Mayflower which will be given under the direction of Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner. The Vice President and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann will arrive at 11:10 o'clock and will be escorted to their box by the chairman of the floor committee, which include officers of the Army and Navy: Col. Harry N. Cootes, U. S. A.; Commander Robert A. Theobald, U. S. A., Cadet Joseph B. Coolidge, of West Point, and Midshipman Maurice Hibschman.

Among those giving dinners preceding the ball will be Miss Elizabeth Pillsbury, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George B. Pillsbury; Miss Mary Dwight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Dwight; Miss Frances Morse, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. John W. Morse; Mrs. Lindsey Russell, Miss Dorothy Dodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dodge. There also will be a Dutch treat table of about twenty young people and Mrs. Hagner will have as her guests for dinner Maj.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Ladd will be at home on Sunday from 4 until 7 o'clock in their residence at 4422 Lowell street. They will entertain in honor of Mrs. James Irving Steele, of Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Turner have had as their guests for a week, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Turner, of Maddox, Md.

Stimsons to Entertain Diplomatic Corps.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson have sent out invitations for their annual New Year's breakfast to the Diplomatic Corps at noon on January 1, in the Pan American Union.

The Peruvian Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel de Freye y Santander, has sent out invitatitions for the exhibition of historical documents relating to the wars of independence in South America, which the Peruvian historian and former member of the Peruvian Congress, Dr. Jorge M. Corbacho is presenting under the auspices of Georgetown University on Saturday from 8 to 11 o'clock.

The exhibition will be held at the Healy Building, Thirty-seventh and O streets, in honor of the liberators, Simon Bolivar and Jose de San Martin.

Representative and Mrs. Arthur Greenwood have with them as guests their son, Mr. Joseph Richard Greenwood, of the University of Indiana, and their daughter, Miss Ruth Greenwood, who is dramatic coach at Cedar Crest College, Allentown, Pa., and Mr. Paul Ackman and Mr. Marvin Ackman, nephews of Mrs. Greenwood.

Commander and Mrs. W. R. Van Buren entertained at a small dinner dance at the Army-Navy and Marine Corps Country Club last night for their niece, Miss Betty Elam, who, with their daughter, Miss Nancy Van Buren, is with them for the holidays.

Commander and Mrs. Van Buren will go to Richmond on January 3 to attend the wedding of Miss Susanne Pollard and Mr. John Boatright, Mrs. Van Buren and Miss Pollard are cousins.

Mrs. Thomas L. Wattles and her children will spend Christmas with the brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Wattles, Lieut. and Mrs. E. C. Metcalf, at their home in Annapolis. Mrs. Wattles will return about New Year's, and will be in her apartment at 2700 Connecticut avenue, where she is established for the winter.

Mr. Leander Alfaro, son of the Minister from Panama, will entertain a large group of young people at the supper dance at the Shoreham Hotel this evening.

Miss Etta Taggart will have as her guests for the Christmas holiday her niece, Miss Betty Baer, of Norfolk, and Miss Sylvia Sherberger, also of Norfolk.

Miss Clarke Is Introduced At Big Ball

Debutante Grandniece of James G. Blaine; Robed in Red.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Lynn Clarke entertained at a ball last night at the Mayflower for their debutante daughter, Miss Mildred Blaine Clarke. Mrs. Clarke and her daughter received their guests in the Chinese room, which was decorated with palms and Christmas greens. The debutante wore a robe of deep red taffeta with a long, full skirt and a dropped shoulder line. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of small red and white roses in a paper lace frill with silver streamers. Mrs. Clarke wore a gown of white flat crepe with a bodice heavily beaded with silver.

Miss Clarke is the grandniece of James G. Blaine.

Miss Clarke attended the Friends School in Washington and the Ward-Belmont School in Nashville, Tenn.

Approximately 300 members of the young society group were present at the ball last night.

Mrs. Clarke, the former Miss Maude Blaine, is the youngest of the "Blaine girls" who charmed Washington during the period of her uncle's term as Secretary of State. All five of the sisters are living in Washington.

Mrs. May Blaine Lipscomb presented her daughter, Miss Rebecca Lipscomb, to society several years ago, and shortly afterwards Miss Lipscomb married Lieut. Thomas White, U. S. A., who is now attached to the American Legation in Pieping as language officer. Another cousin of Miss Clarke is Mrs. Donald Wiley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Crosson. Mr. Blaine Mallan, still another cousin, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. F. Mallan.

Mrs. Wyant to Entertain For Miss Kathleen Knox.

Mrs. Adam M. Wyant has issued invitations for a luncheon, at the Shoreham Hotel on Monday for her subdebutante daughter, Miss Anne Moore Wyant, in honor of Miss Kathleen Knox, a debutante of this season. Miss Wyant is home from Smith College for the holidays and is with her parents at Wardman Park Hotel.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John A. Lejeune and their daughters, Miss Laura Lejeune and Miss Eugenia Lejeune, arrived in Washington Monday to spend Christmas. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Lejeune will be at the Highlands and Miss Laura Lejeune and Miss Eugenia Lejeune will be the guests of their sister, Mrs. James D. Glennon, at her home on Quebec street. They will remain in town until after the New Year.

Mrs. Harry S. Black has returned from Europe, where she passed several months, and is at the Plaza in New York.

Princess Margaret Boncompagni has arrived in Washington on her annual visit and will be a guest at the Mayflower for an indefinite period.

ANOTHER Christmas Day draws near and we hope it will be the most joyous you have ever known—that it will hold for you a full measure of life's happiness.

For six consecutive years it has been our great privilege to create substantial savings in the household expenses of our customers. These savings have been made possible by strict economies in operation and the introduction of the most approved machinery used in the manufacture and distribution of "Matchless Service." Today, the household rate for "Matchless Service" is 53% less than it was six years ago. Present indications are that it will again be substantially reduced in cost in 1931.

We are grateful for the confidence and good will which has been so generously bestowed upon us by our many customers in Washington and nearby Maryland. It is responsible, in large measure, for the prosperity we have enjoyed in 1930. That you, too, have had a most prosperous year, and that your prosperity will continue during the coming year, is our sincere wish.

TO give the Christmas gift sets a workout the Wilkins Orchestra, under the new leader, Harold Veo, from New York, who is putting so much pep into the organization, will play this afternoon over WRC at 3 o'clock.

A program, with special attention to the children, will be given by the Washington Gas Light Ensemble this afternoon (WRC, 5 o'clock). This will be in addition to the regular Saturday night broadcast.

Still another local presentation will be the Hahn period with the Washington Choir (WRC, 2 o'clock).

The only Christmas music today on Station WJSV will be the gospel song service at 11 o'clock this morning, which the station hopes to make one of their best programs of the season.

THE presence of a new station here is revealed in a Christmas card which came from Gen. Charles McK. Saltzman, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, bearing the following message:

"Good Morning! This is Station C&MS, located at 1630 Underwood street, Washington, D. C., operated on 1,000,000 kilocycles by authority of Santa Claus.

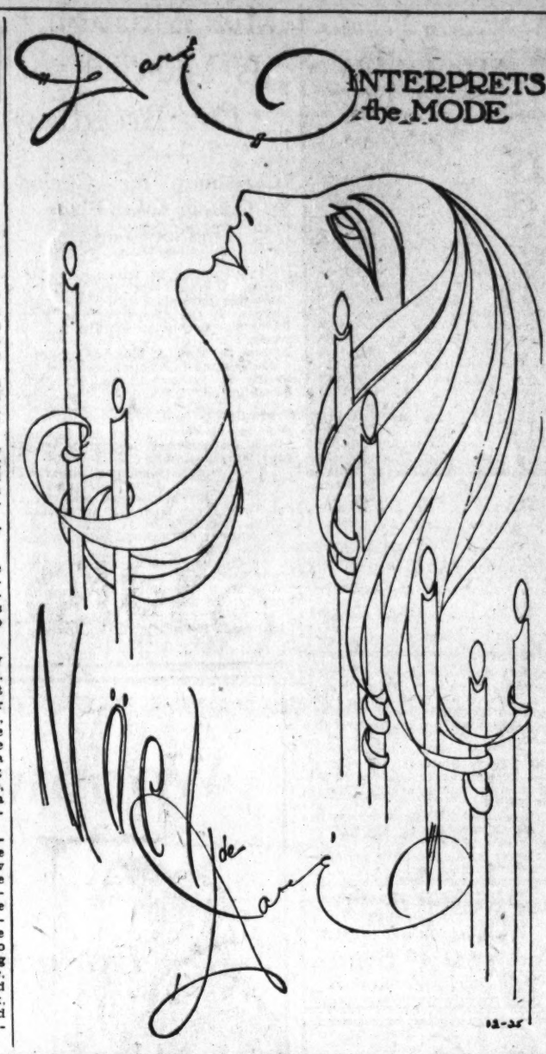
"There will be a brief pause on the program for the purpose of wishing you a Merry Christmas and a cleared channel for happiness free from heterodynes and unpleasant harmonics during the coming year.

"We will now return you to your own studio."

Going "Three Little Words" one better, Walter J. Damm, of Milwaukee, president of the National Broadcasters' Association, has composed as a holiday greeting a theme song, "Two Little Words" (Merry Christmas!).

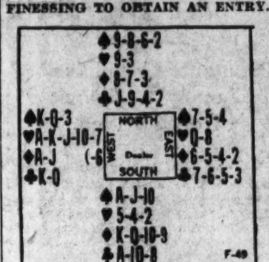
THE piece de resistance musically at the party Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty will give at the Mayflower tomorrow for their daughter, Helen Lee Ames Doherty, will be the presentation of the entire Cities Service radio program, with the artists in person, including Jessica Dragonette, soprano; the Cavaliers; Leo O'Rourke, tenor; John Seagle, barytone, and a 50-piece orchestra under the direction of Rosario Bourdon.

Owing to the fact that the regular Cities Service program is to be broadcast tomorrow night in New York City from 8 to 9 o'clock, the original plan was to bring the performers to the Capital in an airplane immediately thereafter. Later, doubtless having in mind the experience of Rudy Vallee and his orchestra, who spent most of the night floundering around trying to get here by plane, a substitute program was arranged for tomorrow night in New York, thereby releasing Miss Dragonette and the artists for the Washington performance.



WORK ON BRIDGE

FINESSING TO OBTAIN AN ENTRY.



If the above hands should be dealt today, West doubtless would look upon his cards as a seasonable gift from the white-whiskered saint; but when he saw his dummy, that pleasant illusion might be dispelled.

The hand was played some little time ago in a game of Auction Bridge. South bid one No Trump and West obtained the contract with a bid of two Hearts.

At Contract Bridge South would bid one No Trump and West four Hearts.

When the hand was played, North led the Deuce of Clubs. South won and returned the suit. West won and led two rounds of trumps, winning the second in dummy (East). Dummy then led a Spade, but South was canny enough to hold back his Ace, and West won with the King. Declarer then drew the remaining adverse trump but was compelled to lead from his Queen and one Spade and so lost two Spades, one Diamond and one Club. Consequently he failed to go game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer's best chance would have been to take a Heart finesse in dummy—unnecessary to establish the Hearts, but useful for placing a later lead. He did not know whether the Nine of Hearts was located with North or South; that was an even chance. If South held it, finessing the Eight would cost a trick; but only by obtaining two entries in dummy to enable that hand to lead Spades twice could Declarer hope to win enough tricks to go game. In view of the bidding there was little doubt about the location of the Ace of Spades in the South hand. Played in that way East would win the first trick with the Heart Eight and lead a Spade; he would be put in a second time with the Queen of Hearts and lead a second Spade. That would give Declarer four-odd and game.

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me if the inclosed weed has medicinal value.

WILLIAM C. L.

Not knowing the weed I can not answer your question. You had better send it to a laboratory which makes a speciality of plant analysis.

Please tell me if there are male and female flowers. M. F. I.

This would require too long an explanation for this column. The answer to your question involves a knowledge of structural botany. For this, read Grey's Botany, the first few chapters of which treat on this subject. The male fern is an example of a plant, and in the case of the begonia we find on certain varieties a male and female flower on the same plant.

Why do apparently good dahlia plants fail to bloom?

A SUBURBAN GARDENER.

This is generally caused by climatic or cultural conditions, which cause the flower buds to blast in the forming, or damaged by insects.

How can I lighten soil? I feel sure some of my failures are due to too heavy a soil. JOHN K. P.

Plow or work in stable manure in the fall or use sifted coal ashes, sand or granulated peat moss.

Please tell me how to enrich seashore sand. I live near the ocean in the summer and try, or rather am trying to establish a garden.

ELLEN H. G.

Get good loam, sod or top soil, add manure and fertilizer. Sow with rye in the fall, dig under in April and sow in oats, spade that under in May. Some people feel that it is not necessary to use the oats, but if you have time to devote to gardening, I think it pays.

Is the hugonis rose hardy in this locality? ALICE R. T.

The hugonis, or golden rose of China is extremely hardy in all parts of the United States and Southern Canada. Its habit of blooming in May and the masses of fairylike blossoms produced every year make it one of the most valuable shrub roses we have. Did you know you can make a hedge of hugonis roses without using and support? One of the greatest authorities tells us you can grow hugonis roses in Alaska with safety. This means it is hardy anywhere. It blooms best when growing in poor soil. Do not feed this rose or it will grow to foliage and will not bloom.

Please tell me how to grow paper white narcissus in water.

HANNAH J. T.

Plant the bulbs so that they almost touch each other in the water supported by pebbles and store them in a cool, dark place for about five weeks until they are rooted. If potted about October 1 and brought to the light the middle of November they will be in bloom for Christmas.

Please tell me how often to water my geraniums now that they are in the house, also how often to give them plant food. MARY H. T.

Water geraniums only every other day and give them no fertilizer. Geraniums, to do well in the house, must be kept on the dry side, a little potbound (growing in small pots) and always in the sun.

Please tell me how often to water an English ivy in the house. My room is very warm.

MRS. EARL G. F.

Water your ivy every day and see that it has plenty of fresh air. Spray the foliage three times a week.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Grave Situation.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD: For over two years I have been reading your answers and been fascinated at the soundness of your counsel, but it never occurred to me that some day I would suddenly have need of your advice. But that day has come.

I have been married 26 years. Until last summer my husband was devotion itself. Then he became infatuated with a very young girl in his employ. Her parents can neither read nor write and she has neither ambition nor mentality. I had tried to interest her in school and study, to no avail. She is, however, pretty in an unintelligent way. Whatever possessed a man of standing and respected by all who knew him to act as he has, is beyond me to understand. But he has been taking this girl out riding every night and on long day trips, starting in the early morning and returning after 10 at night.

I have remonstrated with him and so has our son. He has countered with charges of un-Christian suspicions on our part. That silenced me. But it has not silenced the community in which we live and in which we play an outstanding part—as his position is one of prominence. I have now heard rumors that his behavior has reached certain quarters where it may mean his position. What can I do? I am a Christian woman. I have been his wife for 26 years. I am not foul-minded, but I know that he can hardly wait to finish dinner in his rush to get out in the car with her. He has often denied being with her, but has been seen by friends who mentioned it. You are experienced. Do you believe it possible for a man to be constantly alone with a girl who permits liberties, and be justified in telling others they are suspicious when they suggest the impropriety of his conduct? And under the circumstances, should I tell him that I have heard that he is to be watched and possibly dismissed? This would be real tragedy for all of us. Yet he must know that he is taking this risk, as all the employes are discussing his behavior among themselves—even the children.

Here is the terrible part. The girl is only 15 years old, but when she sees me she tosses her head and acts very bold. Have you ever known of such a case? Are we all crazy? Or is he? And what of the girl? Tell a distracted woman what to think and what to do. Is he innocent? Is he to lose position, respect at his age on mere appearance of evil or is he deserving of it all? I have witnessed with my own eyes the improper behavior of which I spoke. What do you make of it? FAIR-MINDED.

Your husband is impairing the morals of a minor and not only should he be removed from his position but should be turned over to the authorities. Far from being deceived by his comments upon your unfounded suspicions you should stand your ground and tell him plainly exactly where he would stand in the eyes of the law. Regardless of what you may believe concerning his impeccable past, it is our humble opinion that he is merely more open in his activities and that he is and always has been a menace to any decent community or business.

Issue an ultimatum and stand by it. Tell him if he ever is alone with the girl again you will take the steps his conduct justifies. You can not be too severe or too emphatic. He is an unscrupulous reprobate and will end his days in a prison cell if the law takes a hand in his affairs.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ASK YOURSELF FIFTY.

HERE is a new game, sort of a kinsman to cross-word puzzles. Read these 50 questions. Write 1 to 50 for answers to the questions. Write "yes" or "no" after each. If "yes" represents your personality or your reaction to the question, write "yes." Otherwise, write "no" or leave the space blank.

1. Be by yourself a great deal?
2. Think of life in terms of pleasure?
3. Always calm and collected?
4. Have a great deal of confidence in others?
5. Think or dream of what you will do five years from now?
6. Stay at home during social affairs?
7. Work with many people around you?
8. Do the same kind of work all the time?
9. Enjoy social gatherings just to be with people?
10. Think a great deal before deciding anything?
11. Accept suggestions rather than working them out for yourself?
12. Quiet rather than exciting?
13. Dislike having people watching you?
14. Quit a tiresome task?
15. Save money rather than spend it?
16. Seldom analyze your thoughts or motives?
17. Indulge in reverie (day dream) or thought?
18. Have people watch you do things that you do very well?
19. Let yourself go when angry?
20. Work better when people praise you?
21. Love excitement?
22. Often meditate and think about yourself?
23. Be a leader at a social affair?
24. Speak in public?
25. Do the things that you day dream about?
26. Rewrite social letters?
27. Get things done very quickly rather than slow and sure in movement?
28. Think a great deal?
29. Be able to express your keenest feelings (joy, sorrow, anger)?
30. Pay little attention to details?
31. Be exceedingly careful in meeting people?
32. Associate freely with people holding views opposed to your own?
33. Work puzzles?
34. Act on suggestions quickly before stopping to think?
35. Read about rather than do a thing?
36. Enjoy the story more than the way it is written
37. Keep a personal diary?
38. Keep quiet when out in company?
39. Act on the spur of the moment?
40. Dislike thinking about yourself?
41. Always plan out work before you begin it?
42. Change from one type of work to another frequently?
43. Avoid trouble rather than face it?
44. Believe that rumors are important?
45. Confide in others?
46. Distrust people you have just met until you become better acquainted?
47. Study others rather than yourself?
48. Spend your vacation at some quiet place rather than go to a lively resort?
49. Change your opinions easily, even when formed?
50. Take an active part in all conversations going on around you?

The answers indicate the way you feel about the situations asked about. As to some you have no reaction. These you leave unanswered.

Dr. C. A. Neymann, who devised this test, says that a preponderance of yes's mean one type of personality; of no's another type. One type is introvert; the other, extrovert. The introverts should be handled one way, the extroverts another if they are to be kept happy, and the best work is to be got from them. When the introverts become insane they have dementia praecox cases. Under similar circumstances the extroverts develop melancholia or become maniac-depressives.

WATER IN THE BEDROOM.

Mrs. L. S. writes: Is it true that placing a pan of water in the bedroom at night is beneficial to one's health?

REPLY.

Yes—to a certain extent.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Barnum" is of English origin, being a variation of the earlier "Barnham." The "corrupt" or modernized spelling "Barnum" is almost wholly confined to the United States and Canada. "Barnham" has come down to us from two sources. In most cases it stands for the old English "bernhamm," which may be translated "the estate or land near the barn." Sometimes it means "he who lives at the estate of Boerna." "Boerna" was an old English personal name meaning "the warrior." Many families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in one of the several English villages named Barnham. A certain Willelmus Barnom is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379. The Hundred Rolls (1273) mentions a certain Simon de Bernham and a Walter de Bernham.

The family name "Ringling" (also spelled "Ringeling") is one of the several modern forms of the Germanic "Hringilo." "Hringilo" was an old Germanic personal name meaning "The little ring." It may refer to the small rings used in constructing ancient coats or mail, or, in some cases, it may suggest the rings or circles which were marked out on a battlefield as the scene of a special combat. In "Ringling," as is the case generally in Germanic names, the ending "ing" means "the descendant of." Thus, the full significance of "Ringling" is "the descendant of the little ring."

The family name "Tardieu" is a southern French form of the northern "Tardif." These names mean "late" and "tardy," and were first given as nicknames.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

THE CONTROL OF COOKING FIRES.

(Bureau of Standards.)

To increase the amount of heat open drafts which let the air into the ash pit and with soft coal and wood when fresh fuel has been added admit some air by draft immediately over the fire to help burn the combustible gases coming from the fresh fuel. For all fires without flame keep this draft closed.

To decrease the amount of heat close all drafts tight (being sure that the ash-pit door and drafts particularly are tight and that the ash pit itself is free from air leaks), and if this is not sufficient open a draft check draft in the smoke pipe (never the one in the firedoor, or the door itself, as this practice is wasteful of fuel.)

To insure economy of fuel see that all flues and surfaces which the hot gases pass on their way to the chimney are cleaned every two or three weeks.

Be very careful in the use of the damper which closes off the smoke pipe, as such damper is dangerous if closed too tightly and can be left wide open or taken out entirely provided the ash pit is tight and the above directions are followed.

Keep the direct draft in a cooking stove or range closed except in hot weather, or when starting a fire.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Blanca Costejon's green eyes and blonde hair and desire to be an actress were inherited from her grandmother.

BLANCA LOTI

And with her arrival from Spain to appear in Hollywood-made movies she has taken her grandmother's name and become Blanca Loti.

Although only 21, Blanca was on the stage for four years in Madrid. She arrived in New York two months ago to be featured in a play, but an illness soon after her arrival prevented her taking the role.

Disappointed over her bad start, she packed her trunks for her return voyage. It never occurred to the little Spanish girl who had been in America such a short time that Hollywood is ever seeking new talent, and now especially, Spanish-speaking players.

With only a little hope, Blanca asked the producer in whose play she was to have taken part if there was any last-minute opportunity to keep her in this country. There was one. It was a screen and voice test.

Gets a Contract.

The company that had heard about Blanca wanted her for a part in the Spanish version of "Resurrection," and assumed that she, like most other foreign language players, spoke only her own language.

To make a short story shorter, Blanca's name now is on a contract that says she will be in English as well as Spanish pictures. She has only a slight accent.

Blanca learned English from a nursemaid who cared for her when her parents visited America. By the time she was 10 she was quite proficient in the language.

She's American Citizen.

Her grandmother was the first in the family to express a wish to go on the stage. But her aristocratic family kept her from it, because it wasn't the thing for young girls in Spain to do in those days.

An unusual incident made Blanca an American citizen.

When she was 12 she lived with her father for a year in Porto Rico and while they were there the Jones bill was passed in the United States Senate making residents of that island American citizens, unless they denied such citizenship.

Many refused to give up their allegiance to Spain, including Blanca's father, but she was overlooked because she was so small.

Now she is glad because she has one thing less to worry about.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN."

IF December 25 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger period is from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.

Materially, things will be at a standstill on this date, although there may be an unusual mental awakening, which may mark the beginning of a period of advancement. A certain amount of care is necessary in respect to health.

Children born on this December 25 will have practical natures, moderate ambitions, plodding ways and even tempers. They will reveal no decided talents, although they will be capable of doing many things well, and they will be chronically industrious.

You have a very optimistic nature, and you seldom allow yourself to get downhearted. Your philosophy of life wins for you the affection of the world at large. You dip into life's pool too deeply not to pick up many heartaches, but "the tougher the break the broader the grin." You have a stimulating, intrepid personality, and the confidence which you may champion, is quickly transmitted to your associates. You are a sunny, and not a gloomy, person to have around. As a companion, a host or a guest, you are delightful, and although you are an able conversationalist, you are also a willing and interested listener.

You have innumerable ties and interests and will enjoy a full social as well as business or home life. It is not unlikely that you will be a competent servant of the public and a much loved one in whatever capacity you work. When you are inwardly tingling with enthusiasm and excitement you are outwardly debonair and casual. There is always a burning spirit beneath your neat, unruffled exterior and air of quiet self-possession. Allied with your receptive and acute intelligence is a tireless energy and the gift to get things done.

Your horoscope is the picture of that of a happy and busy being. You are not a rainbow chaser; you find your sunbeams in the everyday realities.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Weighing Values.

The increasing complications of modern family life, and the new and ever-changing demands of the educational system, especially in large cities, make it necessary to consider thoughtfully the whole routine of the child's life.

The child's routine no longer can be left to the chance influences without real danger that his development will suffer because he enjoys too little of some things and too much of others.

Mothers of city children must, for instance, weigh in their own minds the relative importance of outdoor play, of hours spent in the classroom, or in parental companionship.

The plan for each child must be made in the light of his physical needs, his special aptitudes and weaknesses, his emotional stability and his own expressed desires.

It is not easy to deal wisely with these problems. No matter how carefully one weighs the pros and cons of any program, he can never be sure that he has done right until he sees the results.

It, however, is helpful to realize the necessity for conscious planning.

It helps, for instance, to consider definitely whether dancing lessons or the use in free outdoor play of the hours which such lessons would consume will be most beneficial, and whether Saturday afternoons spent in playing ball or going on a family excursion are more desirable.

Parents are apt to make the mistake of crowding the child's day with too many appointments.

Each one may in itself be enjoyable and advantageous, but together they militate against balanced development and his capacity to profit by the advantages he is given.

ACTIVE STOCKS GAIN FROM 1 TO 3 POINTS

Grains and Cotton Are Also Able to Make Nominal Improvement.

TURNOVER FAIRLY LARGE

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Although the financial markets were not particularly boisterous in their celebration of Christmas, there was nevertheless progress in all departments. Active stocks closed 1 to 3 points higher—a range that represented about half of the day's extreme gains—while bonds, grain and cotton showed more nominal improvement.

Considering the fact that December 24 is frequently the dullest day of the year in the stock market, the turnover of 1,582,338 shares was fairly large. Not until the last hour, when only 211,000 shares changed hands, did the trading exhibit extreme lassitude.

The chief topic of conversation on financial circles, naturally was the reduction in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. This further step in the easy money policy that has been followed for more than a year stimulated considerable short covering in the early hours and it was this professional activity, that accounted for much of the strength, although the coppers got help from the declaration of a regular dividend by Anaconda.

Value of Rediscount Cut Cited.

It was generally agreed that the new discount figures should have several important effects. Bankers believed it would serve to improve confidence by demonstrating that the enormous resources of the country's largest reserve bank were available at a record low rate. Its effect on the bond market, it was pointed out, should also be beneficial.

Although it was not generally expected that the amount of outstanding reserve credit would be measurably increased, at least for the present, the Central Bank's step was taken as a forerunner of lower commercial interest and accepted rates, thereby assisting the recovery process in business. Furthermore, it should be of assistance to foreign exchanges, particularly Sterling. Gables on London immediately strengthened, rising 5-32.

One unusual aftermath of the rate cut was the virtual absence of any effect on the money markets. The Federal Reserve cut its bill buying rate by ⅛ of 1 per cent and a few dealers reduced their bid and asked rates, but some of those who cut subsequently returned to the old figures, which resulted in considerable confusion. Call and time money were unchanged.

Because of the holiday, business was flat and colorless. There were the usual mid-week statistics on car loadings and petroleum, the former showing a decrease that was larger than seasonal. Gasoline stocks in the week under view rose more than a million barrels, which was unfavorable, but crude oil output declined.

Copper Situation Unchanged.

There was no change in the copper situation, although demand was said to be good.

Farm Board support and a bullish Government forecast brought net advances running to a cent in wheat futures. Corn, which has been discouragingly weak, firmed to the extent of small fractions, reflecting an improved sales demand and smaller receipts in Chicago. Cotton closed 35 to 55 cents a bale higher.

The advances in stocks were well distributed. Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge and Magma Coppers rallied a point or more and there were net advances of one to two in U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, American Tobacco, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, North American, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, National Biscuit, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Borden, Case and other miscellaneous shares. Air Reduction, Auburn Auto, American Water Works and Western Union were up 3 at the close. Union Pacific held 5 of an extreme advance of more than 6, but otherwise the rails were rather quiet.

The strength of Sterling carried through the other European exchanges, and the Canadian dollar reduced its discount by about half.

BONDS' PRICE LEVEL CLIMBS FORWARD

Inquiries for Investment Issues in Domestic List Aids Movement.

C. & O. 4½S ADVANCE

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—A moderate buying demand exerted its influence to impart a cheery tone to the bond market today.

The price level was raised somewhat by inquiry for investment issues in the domestic list, where the advance more closely resembled the normal movement in times of easy money than the recent sharp rebound.

Investors, however, were not very active on the buying side and the turnover took a sharp drop such as traders usually expect on the eve of a holiday. The improved tone was partially attributed to the reduction in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate after the close of the market yesterday.

Quiet Week Expected.

But bond men generally expect, however, that its influence on bond buying will not be very marked until after the turn of a new year. The final week of the year ordinarily is a quiet one.

Another factor which exerted a stabilizing influence was the Christmas buying spirit in the share market which helped second grade rails and stock privilege issues, that move in sympathy with stocks. Rails and other convertibles gained large fractions or more. There was a strong demand for Alleghany Corporation bonds and the 5 per cent issues advanced 2 and 3 points each.

After some hesitancy in recent sessions railroad obligations resumed their advance, but at a much slower pace. Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s B, Chicago & Northwestern 3½s, Rock Island 4½s A, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Erie issues, International Great Northern 6s, Missouri Pacific 5s F, Frisco 4½s, Wabash 5½s, were in the vanguard.

Other Rails Gain Fractionally.

Closing prices of this group represented an average gain of about a point while other investment rails advanced fractionally.

Investment demand bolstered prices of the prime utility and industrial obligations although turnover fell off to a small group was very slight. American Telephone Co. issues were well bought. Niagara Falls Power 6s advanced more than a point.

Trading in Treasury obligations was confined principally to two issues—Liberty 4th 4¼s, which were firm and Treasury 3⅜s which were unchanged. Foreign bonds were irregularly higher. There was a good inquiry for some of the European governments. A ½ point advance in German 5½s stood out.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1930. 13

STUDENT HEAD ADMITS ATHLETIC ILLS AT CENTRAL

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Advices from Florida indicate that the citizens and office holders of the Miami region have been unable to renew their fine old compromise with their fine old principles thus far this season and that the gambling business will encounter difficulties during the winter. If the gambling business is repressed and suppressed, other forms of business may expect to suffer accordingly, as the money won at the crap tables, roulette wheels and faro banks is easy money and is spent more freely than any other kind of money.

There is agitation at the present time for a policy of tolerance and liberality, but this uncertainty is bound to deter many gambling gentlemen who do not care to set up their expensive furniture at the risk of its being seized or destroyed by raiding parties.

There were some unfortunate incidents of this kind last year and Miami got a very bad name with the profession. The boys claimed that they had contributed to the political conscience fund in the summer of 1929, and when they went South they naturally expected that all the influential consciences had been taken care of. Some of these consciences were extremely sensitive, and a large amount of money was required to appease them, but the boys were willing to do this, as they are very honorable themselves and they do not like to think that any office holder is being troubled by his conscience.

CONSCIENCE FUND IS LARGE

But they were greatly surprised when they began operations in Miami and Miami Beach to discover that some few consciences were still active. Several regrettable incidents occurred and the boys were packing their furniture on the trucks, preparing to move to another county, when moderate influences effected an adjustment.

The refreshment business is not likely to be molested in any way, as drinking is a key industry on the Florida East Coast and, although the district is politically dry, it is well recognized that interference with the industry would drive the customers to the British off-shore islands and to the bars of Sloppy Joe and the four O'Brien brothers in Havana. The O'Brien brothers are four enterprising young men from New York State who have made good in a foreign country, but it is hard to understand why they went away to make good when they might have gone into business in Miami thus keeping that much more American capital and business at home.

MERCHANTS AT MIAMI PEEVED

The drinking industry is a favored and protected industry in Florida, particularly on the East Coast, and any interference with the supply by the United States Coast Guard or molestation of the dealers or customers ashore by land agents would be certain to draw sharp representations from the leading citizens who are dry in principle and politics.

I have been reading that the merchants of Miami are just as indignant about the meddling policy of the office holders toward the gambling business as the gambling firms are themselves. The merchants have been held up in their buying and other arrangements for the winter season, afraid to buy lest the unreasonable opposition to the gambling business should divert the most liberal customers to other places and afraid to buy too little lest the problem should be decided the other way. I should think some merchants' luncheon club or bigger and better business committee would hire counsel and obtain an injunction to restrain the office holders from interfering with business. Between them the merchants and the boys of the gambling industry could do something quite handsome for the judge who would issue the writ, and he would then be in a position to protect business by citing for contempt of court any policeman or sheriff who should act in restraint of trade.

I do not believe the rest of the country has any appreciation of the bearing of the gambling business on life in the happier coastal cities of Florida. Children in school study roulette instead of the ordinary courses in arithmetic, according to vicious rumor, and it is an impressive experience to pass by the open windows of the first and second grades and hear the little girls and boys chanting, "Fifty cents on a single number pays $17.50; 50 cents on two numbers pays $8.50; 50 cents on four numbers pays $4; the red and black and the odd and even pay even money, and columns and dozens pay two to one."

ROULETTE IS STUDIED IN SCHOOL

These formulas are recited in singsong much as children elsewhere recite the multiplication tables, otherwise known as the two-tums and the three-tums and so forth.

In the high schools the advanced courses in chemin de fer, hazard, craps and faro are taught by the best professors in the country, including some who studied under such masters as Canfield and Honest John Kelly, and the classroom radios are turned on during the racing hours for laboratory work in book making. Not only are such mental gymnastics more intricate than the commoner problems of mathematics used in the schools elsewhere, but they also give the children practical preparation for useful lives in one of the principal professions of the Florida East Coast.

So the news that the gambling business may be suppressed will be very difficult for the children to understand. Hearing of this strange political caprice they may be wondering what is the use of studying their roulette and crap lessons faithfully. But in time the mystery will unfold itself as they delve into the science of government and learn that hypocrisy is one of the first essentials of an honorable career in public service.

The French, the Spaniards and the Cubans, realing that people will gamble, sell government gambling licenses to the syndicates which operate the casinos, but they are very immoral peoples, and I am sure nobody would be so sordid as to suggest that these American cities should place a tax on gambling. That would be tantamount to civic honesty, the one evil which, above all others, the class in civics is taught to abhor.

Nats Counting On Bolton As Catcher

Rookie Who Hit .377 Last Year Seen as Natural Slugger.

Is Poor Fielder But Gharrity Will Be Special Tutor.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

BACK from a "Seeing America" tour in connection with his toy baseball game which he introduced, Walter Johnson yesterday cautioned Washington fans not to overlook Cliff Bolton as a catching prospect in a discussion precipitated by the sale of "Muddy" Ruel to the Red Sox. At that time it was pointed out that Roy Spencer, Ed Kenna and "Pinky" Hargrave were to bear the catching burden for the Nats.

The hit is the thing in baseball and scouts and experts who have seen Bolton swing his bat are agreed that he is a natural hitter. As a matter of fact, Bolton's batting has attracted attention in every league in which he has competed in his short diamond career.

Bolton is not yet 23 years of age and has been playing professionally only since 1928, when he graduated from the High Point (N. C.) High School and joined his home town's entry in the Piedmont League, leading the pill-pounders of that circuit with an average of .403.

Reports Late at Tampa, Is Sent to New Haven.

Washington bought him at the end of the season and might have kept him, but he failed to report on time, and, when he finally showed up at the Tampa training camp, he was behind in training and within a week was sent to New Haven on option. With the Eastern Leaguers Bolton soon struck his stride and he was leading the league when he broke his throwing arm late in the season.

Last year Bolton showed his wares with Chattanooga and he topped the stick-wielders in this good circuit, hitting around .400, until near the end, when he dropped slightly but managed to rate second. His average was .377 for 97 games, 93 hits in 247 times at bat, and hid among his safeties were 18 doubles, 6 triples and 4 homers.

Despite his hitting ability, however, Bolton has one big handicap, probably being as poor a workman behind the plate as one can imagine, according to reports from these same scouts who have raved over his hitting ability.

Managers Suffer As He Catches.

While at both New Haven and Chattanooga last season, his managers suffered acutely while watching him try to catch and finally gave up, using him in right field so as to give their teams the benefit of his batting punch. It is said that Bolton looked so badly chasing fouls that his bosses worried for fear he would be hit on the head while trying to make the catch.

"I've heard all about Bolton's shortcomings as a catcher," said Johnson last night, "but I think that Cliff can be taught to catch fairly well, at least—and that's going to be Coach Pat Gharrity's main job when we get to Biloxi next spring. You can teach a fellow to field, but you can't teach him to hit, and a natural hitter like Bolton is worth taking a little pains with.

"Take Mickey Cochrane, of the A's, for instance," Johnson continued. "He was terrible on foul balls when he first broke in, but now look at him. And Goose Goslin was just about as bad a fielder as I ever saw when he first broke in and he can field with the best of them now. He's still awkward chasing balls, but he manages to snare 'em."

Gharrity's Coaching Holds Out Hope.

And so Bolton will have a special tutor at Biloxi next spring. Gharrity probably will patent some head pads so that his pupil is not maimed or killed during the first few lessons, but, if Bolton escapes injury in these he has a chance, for the veteran coach is sure to make the youngster a passable fielder anyway.

The rookie could, of course, be carried exclusively for pinch-hitting purposes, but his batting eye probably would get dim if used only occasionally. As an outfielder, Bolton was even worse than as a catcher, hence Gharrity's ability as a catching coach means much to the Washington Club.

JAMES F. MARTIN has no whiskers, but he has the heart of a Santa Clause. Being postmaster in Santa Clause, Ind., he gets thousands of letters, addressed to Santa Clause, and he answers them! December mail traffic through this small town is greater than that of all the other months in the year combined.

The big stogie smoked by Jose Naranjo weighed a pound and in reducing it to ashes, Jose outsmoked all the others in a recent contest in Seville. Jose deserved the title he won—champion smoker of Seville.

Sitting in a tree was too tame for Lawrence Peters, so he chose a cactus, and if anybody thinks that 118 hours on a cactus is easy, Lawrence would like to know about it. Perhaps he'd like to know about a certain other tree-sitter—a cow! She sat in a tree near Cuero, Tex., for three days, but not because she wanted to. Her curiosity got her up in one but it took ranch hands to get her down.

Pro Football Players From Hinterlands De-Bunk AllAmericans on Playing Field

Giants' Small-Town Products Scorn Campus Heroes.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—"When I go home," said Mr. Swede Wiberg, of Sedan, Nebr., "the kids will ask me: 'What, did you play against that guy?'

"I'll say: 'Yes, and I threw him right on his neck.' Because he was just like 90 per cent of those newspaper All-Americans, a false alarm."

Mr. Happy Moran of Boone, Iowa, nodded assent. Recently there was a football game at the Polo Grounds in which both took part as members of the New York Giants, a professional football team. A collection of highly publicized young men who got used to seeing their own pictures in the paper, while members of the Notre Dame Football Team, furnished the opposition. And 50,000 New Yorkers saw the professionals, obscure as individuals, flatten the former All-American players, 22 to 0.

Neither Mr. Moran nor Mr. Wiberg was an All-American half back while in college. Mr. Moran attended Grinnell University at Grinnell, Iowa. Mr. Wiberg was a student at Nebraska Wesleyan. He omitted to mention where that is. They were in the office of Dr. Harry A. March, president of the Giants, discussing the mighty events at the Polo Grounds.

Newspapers Make All-Americans.

"All-American players are made by the newspapers, mister," said the leading citizen of Sedan, Nebr., which has a telegraph office as its only other distinction. The pride of Boone, Iowa, was in entire accord.

"When all-American players come up to the professional leagues," said Dr. March, "they have to prove their case on the playing field, and very few of them show the training and stamina of the boys from the small colleges."

"Where we went," Mr. Wiberg explained, "there were no substitutes to rush in for you every time you bumped your elbow. Along toward Thanksgiving everybody who figured he had no chance to make a letter would leave the squad, and you would go into the big game of the season with about fifteen fellows. You would have to play 60 minutes. And nobody would give you much publicity, so you couldn't get a swelled head."

Mr. Moran Has His Say.

Here Mr. Moron broke in.

"If a fellow on the Yale varsity runs ten yards against the freshmen," he observed, "he gets more headlines than if a fellow out home broke loose and ran clear into Minnesota. Naturally you read the Associated Press reports in the papers and you get scared. Why, I thought there was something wonderful about all-American players until I came into the league and played against a few."

"The all-American player is apt to be a prima donna," Dr. March said. "Of course he receives a great deal of publicity during his undergraduate days, and when he turns pro, if he does, there is another great ballyhoo because his name is worth money at the gate. But when he bumps up against big, experienced men who bounce him around a few times he has a tendency to sulk. There are a few great exceptions, all-Americans who have made good in the league, like Benny Friedman, of Michigan, the Giants' captain, and Ernie Nevers, of Stanford, and Bronko Nagurski, of Minnesota. I think Red Cagle will do well when he learns a little too. He's modest."

Plenty Interference In Big Colleges.

"In big colleges special plays are built for the star, and he has plenty of interference in front of him," Moran continued. "In a little place you have to go it alone, and you get used to being dumped."

$84,232 Boxing Show Nets Charity $3,720

Chicago, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Gross receipts of the Young Stribling-Tuffy Griffith Charity Boxing Show, December 12, at the Chicago Stadium, totaled $84,232.41 of which charity received but $3,720.58, the final check-up revealed today.

The contestants on the boxing card, including Griffith and Stribling who shared most of the money, received a total of $44,903.93. The charity total was turned over to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's unemployment and relief fund.

Say Tough Pro Game Reveals Frailties of College Stars.

"One of the fellows on my team out home," said Wiberg, "used to play football just so he could get free meals on the out of town trips. But we had so few men we had to play him regularly."

The educational standing of Harvard, Yale and Princeton took an awful sock when both Giants agreed that they had never known a graduate of those three institutions to be a first class football player. Their attitude toward most of the Notre Dame stars who had opposed them the day before was patronizing. Cannon, All-American guard in 1929, had the makings of a good football player, they thought, and Hunk Anderson, who is both an old Notre Damer and an old professional, is good, of course. The rest were just nice boys.

Red Grange "Flopped" As Pro at First.

Red Grange, the most advertised football player who ever lived, is, strangely enough, one of the very few who has survived his press agents. Grange came into professional football as a ball carrier, pure and simple, preceded by an enormous blast of publicity. He was a flop in the pro-game, but he didn't quit. Now he has learned to block and tackle, to take his full share of the work and submerged himself in the general team play, and even the graduates of Oklahoma City University have to recognize his worth.

Moran, Wiberg and the rest of the football Giants aren't conceited. They don't think they are the greatest professional football players in the world, but they feel sure that professional football is more "efficient" than the big college kind.

The success of the boys from the hinterland is a vindication of the small town against the city, too. These young men from the farms, who attend tiny normal schools or sectarian colleges, come to the city infected with a little of that inferiority complex which Sinclair Lewis helped to graft on Main Street while they were attending high school.

No Illusions About Alma Mater.

They come here and their first experience with the big-time athletes on the football field makes them think that a good many other big-time institutions are the bunk. They have no illusions about alma maters either. They benefit by the absence of soft-lighted college clubs where they can foregather with their classmates in New York and revive the old campus silliness with gin bucks.

"You're a big man on the campus, and then when you're through they're through," they declare. No one will ever see them fluffed up in raccoon coats, saturated with alleged Scotch and bristling with green feathers, tumbling down the steps of the Harvard Stadium.

If there is one thing about which they are sentimental, it is the foot-

Dixie's Pleas to Santa Claus Range Wide in Sports Field

By DILLON GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Santa Claus will find plenty of empty stockings among Dixie's sporting gentry tomorrow.

May be the portly, bewhiskered old St. Nicholas will fill these yawning socks, but probably he won't.

Athletic officials at Washington and Lee, North Carolina State, Mississippi A. & M., and other Southern schools would like a good gridiron coach stuffed into their stockings.

New Contracts Needed By Grid Coaches.

And Jimmy de Hart, who finished his term at Duke this year; Gene Oberst, who resigned at Washington and Lee, and other football mentors at leisure for next season, would count Christmas a whopping success should they find a nice, four-figure contract with some big school awaiting their signature. And Wallace Wade would be willing to delay the arrival of his present, if it should come in the form of a victory over Washington State in the California Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

R. G. Allen, of Little Rock, Ark., would be pleased to see a ball park sticking out of the corner of his sock, while Mobile, Ala., enthusiasts would like arrangements made for their re-entry into the Southern Association next spring.

And all the club owners in Dixie's assorted baseball loops would thank Kris Kringle for a pair of good pitchers, or perhaps a hard swatting outfielder.

Other Coaches Plead For Courtmen.

Basketball coaches are pleading for a good guard or forward, anyone who can cover the floor and hit the basket every once in a while. Their socks are yawning for just such a player from the Saint of Nicholas.

The old gentleman would please Young Stribling, of Macon, Ga., by arranging a quick shot at Max Schmeling's heavyweight crown. And with Bobby Jones out of competition, Atlanta golfers would like another young amateur genius.

Wade Drives Alabama Squad

Stages Morning and Afternoon Drills at Pasadena.

Practice Rudiments; Washington State Hard at Work.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Alabama's football team may reign favorites to defeat Washington State in the New Year's Day game here, but it received no favoritism from its coach, Wallace Wade, today.

The Crimson Tide mentor put his men through two hours of fundamentals this morning at Tournament Park. Not satisfied, he collected them together again this afternoon and meted out two more hours of practice at Patterson Field.

The morning workout was even more surprising than the one instituted last night a few minutes after the Southerners left their train. Freddie Sington, giant lineman; John "Flash" Suther, half back, and John "Hurry" Cain, full back, were the sources of greatest interest to those who watched the afternoon drill.

The surprising speed of Sington led to opinions by onlookers that if the rest of the line can function as they expect this tackle-guard to, the Cougars will be in for a long afternoon.

Coach Orin "Babe" Hollingbery was taking care of that problem at Tournament Park this afternoon, when he settled down to a serious session with his line while assistants took care of the backs.

Christmas will be only another day to both teams. Regular workouts are booked for the afternoon. Each aggregation will have its festivities with lighted trees, gifts, special dinner and probably a show afterward.

Winter Job in Florida For Columbia Net Pro

Jimmy Mitchell, young tennis professional at Columbia Country Club, is expected to leave Washington for Palm Beach shortly after January 1 for a teaching berth at the Bath and Tennis Club.

The local netman, who became a professional in 1928 under the wing of Otta Glockler at Chevy Chase, spent last winter at the Bath and Tennis Club, and his brand of instructing was so well received that it is probable that it will be his yearly post during the wintry months.

Players with the All-Stars will be "Chunky Travers, of V. M. Artists and Writers To Golf at Havana

Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—The Artists and Writers Golf Association, which numbers in its membership many of America's leading writers, painters and illustrators, will hold its annual tournament at Havana, Cuba, between January 20 and 25, it was announced here today.

An extra tournament will be played at Palm Beach afterward.

H. E. Bemis, manager of the Royal Poinciana Hotel here, where the golfers make headquarters, said they would embark on the Cunard liner Caronia at New York January 17 and arrive in Havana January 20. Following the Cuban tournament, they will come here by boat and train for the two-day contest at the Palm Beach Country Club.

Grantland Rice is champion of the association which includes in its membership Rex Beach, Clarence Buddington Kelland, Barclay McClelland and James Montgomery Flagg. Rice heads the tournament committee.

DEATH TAKES LANNIGAN, COACH

Became Famous as Track Tutor While at Virginia U.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 24. Henry H. ("Pop") Lannigan, one of the most noted athletic trainers in the East, died this morning at the University Hospital, after an illness extending over two years. For many months, he was under treatment at the United States Naval Hospital, at Portsmouth, Va., but for the past two months had been at his home at the university. One week ago he was transferred to University Hospital.

The funeral will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal Church, at the university, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the service to be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Noble C. Powell. Interment will be in the University Cemetery.

Came to Virginia From Cornell.

Henry Hayden Lannigan was born in Pembrokshire, Wales, the son of William Lannigan, reader at Dublin College, and was 65 years of age. He came to this country in his early teens and entered upon his long athletic career at the Springfield Training School, at Springfield, Mass. For several years he was athletic director in the Y. M. C As at Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va.

"Pop," as he was familiarly known by the students, came to Virginia in 1904 from Cornell University, where he had served as athletic director for 14 years. The genial Irishman at once made a big hit. Indeed, Virginia's supremacy in track athletics dates from the arrival of Lannigan. In his first few years he developed a number of the best known track stars in this country, among them James A. Rector, the Arkansas flash, and Forrest Stanton, the California phenom. Rector, it will be recalled, defeated every man he faced in this country, and in the 100-meter race at the Olympic games in London lost by 6 inches to Reginald Walker, the South African, after seven false starts had been made. In the same meet, Rector tied the 100-meter record seven times in preliminary heats.

Turned Down Many Good Offers.

Trainer Lannigan's ability was acknowledged throughout the East and South, and his services were eagerly sought by leading institutions of both sections. All of these offers were turned down, however, and he remained in harness at Virginia until forced to retire two years ago on account of ill health.

For many years Lannigan acted as trainer for all of the athletic teams at Virginia. He coached basket ball, track and wrestling and assisted in coaching the baseball and football squads. He also looked after the boxing and fencing teams and coached swimming when the new gymnasium was opened.

Mr. Lannigan married Miss Helen White, of Bakersfield, Vt. She survives, with two daughters, Mrs. Erskine Caldwell, of the University, and Miss Virginia Lannigan, of New York City. He also leaves four brothers and one sister.

Grand National Draws Winner at Grasslands

New York, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Alligator, recent winner of the Grassland Steeplechase, has been nominated by Mrs. Maud Stevenson for the Grand National Steeplechase to be run at Aintree next March.

Alligator is an 11-year-old chestnut gelding by Iron Grey out of Florida. He is a clean jumper and a natural stayer and should not be handicapped by Aintree's long course of 4 miles 856 yards.

Only two Americans have won England's great steeplechase, Stephen (Laddie) Sanford with Sergeant Murphy in 1923, and A. C. Schwartz with Jack Horner in 1926.

Failing Spirit Charged to School

Hinkel Scores Failure to Discriminate in Letter Awards.

Supports "C" Club's Charge; Raps Fraternity Influence.

ATHLETIC ills at Central High School, now in the throes of a sports decline, were attributed yesterday to lack of student support, poor morale, absence of incentive and franternity influence by Paul Hinkel, president of the Februay graduating class, president of the senior student council, a football backfield star and holder of several other important offices in the undergraduate body.

Asked by The Post for comment on the action of the graduate "C" Club, comprised of alumni who have won their letter in sports, which roundly flayed the undergraduates at Central for their failing spirit and poor support of the school's teams, Mr. Hinkel admitted the charge and touched upon many phases of the athletic situation at the school.

The charges of the "C" Club were precipitated last month when only 124 Central students the game between Central and Washington-Lee high, of Ballston, Va. Approximately 2,400 students are enrolled at the school. The contrast also was drawn between Central's once lofty position in high school sports here when it monopolized virtually every title and its present lowly estate which finds the school with no major championship since 1928.

Award of Letters Too General.

Failure to discriminate between major and minor sports letters was declared by Mr. Hinkel to be one cause for the scarcity of football talent inasmuch as students were able to earn varsity "C's" in many of the less strenuous sports such as swimming, rifle, golf, tennis, cheer leading and field hockey and feel no urge to make the team in football, baseball, basket ball or track. At Tech High the distinction is drawn between these sports.

Poor attendance at the game was traced by Hinkel to the absence of pep meeting and rallies which had been a feature of the school program in the past but conspicuously missing in recent years during which the decline of the school in sports was marked. Successive defeats, especially at the hands of Tech, have had a disastrous effect on the morale of the students.

The influence of fraternities, especially in football, was declared to have been more noticeable last season than in the immediate past, although Mr. Hinkel did not cite specific cases. "Fraternity phases did the team no good," he said.

Charge Lack of Faculty Cooperation.

Lack of cooperation among certain teachers only lukewarm toward athletics, especially football, was declared to be a severe handicap to the teams, owing to the refusal of faculty members to aid an athlete, if the athlete showed signs of dropping below the required number of merits. This practice, which usually amounts to further examinations and some slight concentration and time on the part of the teacher was a help to Central squads in the past. The wholesale disqualifications which affected Central's football team at the release of the first advisory marks stands as a concrete example.

Principal Harvey A. Smith could not be reached last night for comment on the charges of the "C" Club. Belief that he would take steps to remedy the situation was expressed by Mr. Hinkel, who pointed out that Principal Smith had displayed himself as extremely friendly to sports at the school.

Letters have been awarded to the following men who played on the championship team this year: Hawkins, McFadden, Oglesby, LeGrand, Coleman, Leys, Stevens, A. Stump, Flippin, R. Stump, Martin, Bradley, Robertson, Sublett, Sprinkle, Brown, and Capps and Rohrenberger and Trevey, managers.

Rockne Spends Christmas With Family at Rochester

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, welcomed his family today for a Christmas observance far from home. He refused to reveal his plans for next year. Mrs. Rockne, their three sons and one daughter will spend the holiday with the coach, who is here for a check-up of his condition at the Mayo clinic.

Asked whether the findings of his physician Tuesday that he must lead a less strenuous life would have any effect on his coaching duties at Notre Dame he replied: "I am here resting and have no definite plans." He declined to comment further.

Not Expected to Make Coast Trip.

Although Rockne refused to reveal whether he would go to Los Angeles for a football game Saturday between Notre Dame stars and a West-South eleven, friends said he had no plans for making such a trip.

He plans to depart for South Bend on December 30, after he files a speaking engagement at a Knights of Columbus banquet here the preceding evening.

Christmas for the Rocknes will include a forenoon together and a dinner. In the afternoon they will go to the home of his physician, Dr. C. J. Barborka.

Dr. Barborka Tuesday said nothing serious has been found in the condition of the coach, but that phlebitis, which has bothered Rockne previously, might recur or a complete breakdown result unless he took life easier.

PRIVATE CLOCKING CLOUDS RECORD OF JACK HIGH

Timing Clerk Erred, Is Claim

1:35 Mark Is Due to Failure to Post Fraction at Belmont.

Unofficial Watches Show Colt's Time at 1:35 4-5.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

IT is regretted there is denied a clear title for Jack High in the matter of lowering the mile record during the present year, for his mile at Belmont Park was a sparkling performance. Officially, the George D. Widener colt ran the distance in 1:35 flat, but much was made of the difference in which the race, run May 25 in the Manhattan Handicap, was caught, all the private watches agreeing that the true time was 1:35 4-5, and that the timing clerk merely forgot to hang up the fraction.

This oversight would have made no difference in an ordinary race, but where the American record was at stake there is too much chance for an injustice. The entire record of Jack High, which is not entered in the stakes for next year, leans to confirmation of the battery of private watches.

Private Watches Caught Time as 1:35 2-5.

They caught his record two-fifths of a second slower than the record held for the distance by Mrs. Payne Whitney's Cherry Pie, made at Belmont Park on September 3, 1923. This was 1:35 2-5. Roamer ran a mile against time at Saratoga on August 21, 1918, in 1:34 4-5, but, as this was not in competition, it could not become a record.

The truth is that little was done to the time records in 1930, for Gallant Fox, in all his brilliant racing, failed to lower any track record. But he won all his races except in the Travers, where he met the weakest opposition of his career—eliminating Whichone, which went lame in the race.

It was the boast of the late Clarence Kummer that he had ridden three horses during his career a mile in less than 1:36. He rode Man o' War in the Withers in 1920 a mile in 1:35 4-5, and the champion was never extended in that race. On June 1, 1921, Kummer rode Audacious a mile in the Mineola Handicap to a record of 1:35 3-5. Cherry Pie lowered this record. Kummer rode Snob II in 1:35 4-5.

This makes the second time in the history of American thoroughbred competition that a new record has been questioned. When the late William C. Whitney's Whisk Broom II was timed a mile and a quarter in 2 minutes flat in the running of the Suburban Handicap there was any number of private clockers who gave it as their opinion that Whisk Broom II was fully three-fifths of a second off the record.

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON Park, turning into its final week, offers a holiday card today of eight races, and has advanced the starting of the first race to 2:45 p. m. The card is featured by the Christmas Handicap, for all aged horses, at a mile and a sixteenth. Indications are the track will remain fast.

In the Christmas Handicap, GALAHAD is selected, but he is required to concede weight to all the others. This is the track he runs upon best, and he has been beating this kind of horses. A week ago, he won the Grand Isle Handicap, and on opening day at this track he won the Inaugural Handicap. VOLTEAR, which won his last race at this track, beating Pegg's Pride, has five pounds concession from GALAHAD, and is very dangerous. On form, BATTLE AX has a money chance. He whipped GALAHAD once this winter, but the latter did not run up to his form on that day. The race is an extremely open one. An outsider may take the $3,000 purse. ROCKET GLARE, with 98 pounds, ran only a qualifying race the other day, and a surprise may come from that filly, which ran with high class horses in Maryland. The Whitney entry also may figure in the race.

FIRST RACE—FUDGE is selected in the first race for two-year-olds, and it may be close. FALMOUTH BELLE and LIGHT MINT are both dangerous, and should be close up. FALMOUTH BELLE was second to Brown Eyed Mary in her last start, and the time was good. FUDGE was favorite over Johnny and ran third recently. MARDIE would fare better on a heavy track. LIGHT MINT can do better than recent races indicate.

SECOND RACE—BOB ROGERS should win the second race. His second to Scone would win this. In his last, he was third to Elizabeth Bolla, but the track was heavy. He is an improved horse and has the speed of this field. CHIANTI has been knocking at the door and may get close to the leader. He was third to Chene and BOB ROGERS a short time ago. DARK SIMON should hold the others safe.

MY LAVA has been running in bad form, but has a good chance to score in the third race. HAZEL DENSON will be the contender. She was third to Gray Gull Tuesday, and is in best form. HERB ASHBY, on his Maryland form, should get third money. MY LAVA has the class on this field.

FOURTH RACE—In the fourth race, FAIR FOLLY stands out. She beat Miss Maryland last week and has won two races at this meeting. She has enough early speed to take a big lead on this field and hold it. JAMES M. will be the contender, on his last race, when he was second to Don Tinkey. TORPOINTER does not seem to improve, but he is going to cause a surprise some of these days. He should be third in this race, if he runs in the right direction.

SIXTH RACE—BOB KERNAN looks a shade best in the sixth race. MADCAP MARVIN is the most dangerous rival for the purse. His second to Kadiak and his defeat of Cockrill previously answers the question in this race. MADCAP MARVIN beat Sandy Lady a week or so ago. ESSIE ran a good race a few days ago, and has the call on the others.

SEVENTH RACE—SHARK has the call in the seventh race, at a mile and a sixteenth. Ordinary platers compete and whatever may happen will not be a surprise. SHARK has had a rest. Last time out he was favorite and beaten in an upset by Marengo, paying $99. BIG GUN'S last race makes him the contender with REIGH OLGA much improved recently, next best.

EIGHTH RACE — Somewhat better horses start in the eighth race. DUELIST failed to win his last, being beaten by George Webre, but he finished in front of Aviator, and that should make him win this. LUDAS is next best. He was second to Lansquenet last out. BATTLE ON has a chance to show.

Bucknell Reengages Grid Coach Snavely

Special to The Washington Post.

Lewisburg, Pa., Dec. 24.—Carl G. Snavely, head football coach at Bucknell University, has signed a contract to coach the varsity at Bucknell for the next three years, it has been announced by the Athletic Council through Prof. B. W. Griffith, graduate manager. All other head coaches and assistants in the various sports have been reengaged.

Snavely came to Bucknell four years ago, and has built excellent football teams. His teams have never lost more than three games in any one season, and with one exception, no team has beaten his elevens by more than two touchdowns. The three-year contract gives Snavely a seven-year tenure at Lewisburg, the longest a football coach has remained at Bucknell in modern football. Snavely will also coach baseball.

John D. Plant, veteran basket ball coach was reappointed. He also coaches the varsity track team. Malcolm Musser, assistant director of physical education, will have charge of freshmen football, freshmen basketball, and freshmen baseball. His yearling football team was undefeated this fall.

DRIVE BRINGS VICTORY TO MALAITA

Whitney Colt Defeats Skibo by Head at Jefferson Park.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—The silks of C. V. Whitney were carried to victory in the Homestretch Purse feature of six furlongs here today, when Malaita was home a head in front of Skibo. It was the first start for this son of Chickle-Tahiti, and he acquitted himself in great style by coming from behind to win in a furious drive. Skibo was second by a head over Ben Marshall.

The start was good, Ben Marshall taking the early lead with the rest of the field bunched about a length back of him. Rounding the half-mile pole, Gold Bet was sent up and in a few strides was in front. He turned into the stretch leading by a length with Malaita back in fourth position.

In the final furlong James rode Malaita hard. The colt responded gamely and won in a hard drive, running the six furlongs in 1:13 and paid $7.80 for $2.

Agnes Sorrell Scores In Opener.

Agnes Sorrell, well ridden by Landolt, scored in the opening event and it was reported that the stable connections cleaned up heavily by her victory. Flagg Porter was second and Attire third.

Miss Runantell showed the way to the top of the stretch where Agnes Sorrell took the lead to win in a drive by half a length. Flagg Porter, showing improvement over recent races, closed fast to take the place by two lengths from Attire. The winner paid $6.00.

Elizabeth Sullivan, under J. Renick's hustling ride, accounted for the third, leading home Bourbon Maid, with Take Off, the favorite third. Elizabeth Sullivan paid $16.40 for a $2 ticket.

Bourbon Maid was rushed to the front while McCoy, on Take Off, allowed his mount to rate along under a strong pull. However, when the real racing began in the final furlong Take Off dropped back, beaten, and Elizabeth Sullivan, closing fast on the inside took the lead and won by a length. Bourbon Maid saved the place by a like distance from Take Off.

One Long Hop Wins For Kentuckians.

The Kentuckians put over another good thing in the second event when Mrs. E. L. Swikard's One Long Hop, with the apprentice C. Turner up, landed the purse in the second event, a six furlong gallop for 3-year-olds. Patti Louise was second and Sam Cole third.

One Long Hop went right to the front and led all the way to win by two lengths in the good time of 1:13 4-5. The winner paid $8.00.

The Christmas gift to the Centennial Athletic Club for its victory in the 150-pound division of the Capital City Football League sponsored by The Washington Post was the handsome silver loving cup presented by The Post. Richard S. Tennyson, of The Post staff (right) made the presentation to Joseph Khuen, coach of the Centennials.

Damocles, 64-1, Wins Sprint Race at Havana

Havana, Dec. 24 (A.P.).—The longest priced winner of the present meeting at Oriental Park showed up today in Damocles, who raced a good field of 2-year-olds into submission to win the La Dalai Purse at 5½ furlongs. He paid $126 for a $2 mutuel ticket, but was only a 20-to-1 shot in the books.

Away well Damocles made all the early running with Shuffle closely behind. Turning into the stretch the son of Royal Canopy drew away and left no doubt as to the outcome. He raced in the silks of Mrs. J. W. Dayton.

Shuffle Again was second and Airs and Graces, belonging to Mrs. S. Willett, was a close third.

The management announced today there would be seven races on Friday and that a card also would be presented on Monday.

Haverford Trackmen Count on Rice, Reisner

Special to The Washington Post.

Haverford, Pa., Dec. 24.—The Haverford College Track Team will present strong competition to all of its opponents this spring in the sprint events in the persons of Capt. Robert O. Rice, of Bradenton, Fla., and Herbert W. Reisner, of Millersville, Pa. Rice and Reisner, who are seniors and roommates, were a strong threat last year and are expected to score many points for the Little Quaker college during the coming season. Both covered the hundred yard dash in 10 1-5 seconds.

Rice, besides captaining the track squad and starring in the sprints, is an excellent broad jumper, taking second place in this event at the Middle Atlantic games last spring. He also has played half back on the football team for the last two seasons. Reisner, besides the century, also shows up well in the furlong and the quarter mile.

WATER BOND ISSUE VOTE IS SCHEDULED

Notice of Special Election for January 13 Posted in Falls Church.

FIREMEN HAVE BUSY DAY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The authorities of the Town of Falls Church yesterday posted notices for a special election to be held on January 13 on a $125,000 bond issue for a municipal water system. Only freehold property owners, actually residing in the corporate limits of the town, are to participate in this election. Five notices were posted in public places in Fairfax County and five in Arlington County section of the town.

Attached to each notice is a list of the resident freeholders of the town, as compiled from hte tax records by Town Clerk J. C. Parrott. This original list includes 631 names, which is subject to amendment prior to the election. These lists were posted in order that they may be examined by the residents prior to the election. The names of the persons included in the list may be challenged by any resident who wishes to question the right of any citizen listed to qualify as a freehold property owner or to add the name of any other citizen whose name has been inadvertently omitted.

The town council will hold a special meeting on January 5 to hear any complaints and to establish an authoritative list for use of the judges of the election. The majority of resident freeholders must vote in favor of the bond issue before the question can be voted upon by the qualified voters of the twon.

The lower floor of the former school building at Lincolnia is being remodeled and made more convenient for community gatherings and entertainments. The work is being financed by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Pupils who formerly attended school at Lincolnia are now being transported to the Annandale School.

At the annual congregational meeting of the Herndon Baptist Church, Russell A. Lynn, Furr L. White, Granville White, J. B. Armfield, Ernest Gibson, Harold Grow and Benjamin McCarthy were elected deacons. G. M. At the annual Sunday school meeting the officers and teachers elected were: Russell A. Lynn, superintendent; Howard Armfield, assistant superintendent; Herman Kephart, secretary; Ralph Armfield, assistant secretary; Benjamin McCarthy, treasurer. Harvey E. Hanes was reappointed teacher of the Socii class, with G. M. James, assistant; Mrs. Estelle Ricker, teacher of the women's Bible class, with Mrs. Lucas Ish, assistant; Mrs. Benjamin C. Fleming, teacher of the junior class for girls; Granville White, teacher of the junior class for girls; Granville White, teacher of the junior boys class; Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, teacher of the girls class; Mrs. Raymond Thornsberry, superintendent of the primary department, assisted by Miss Elma Gilette.

The congregations of the Crossman Methodist Episcopal Church and the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will hold a joint Christmas worship service this morning from 7:30 until 8 o'clock in the Crossman Church. The Rev. George Conner will take charge of the service and the Rev. U. S. Knox will give a short address. This union service on Christmas Day is an annual custom of the two congregations.

The members of the Southern Methodist Church at Fairfax will present an original pageant written by the Rev. Royal A. Rice, pastor of the church, Sunday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The pageant depicts scenes of the Old Testament, leading up to the birth of Christ.

The list of characters taking part in the pageant, as announced yesterday, include: Adam, Norman Dove; Eve, Virginia Beavers; Devil, Myron Cupp; Abraham, Neil Sprigg; Moses, E. S. Whiting; Isaac, Blair Cupp; Jacob, C. P. Jones; Isaiah, Roy Hollis; Malachi, Thomas I. Piggott; Herod, John M. Whalen; servant, Myron Cupp; angels, Sydna Bennett and Lucille Rice; Shepherds, E. S. Whiting, John M. Whalen and Neil Sprigg; wise men, Roy Hollis, C. P. Jones and Thomas I. Piggott; Mary, Mary Mickelson; Joseph, Neil Sprigg. Also included in the mob scene in the market place are Mavis Cobb, Reba and Roma Cupp, Edna and Bernice Jerman, Vera Jones, Bernice Cupp, Clarice Craig and Virgie Haines.

Aleck Haight has been elected master of the Henry Lodge, A. F. and A. M., at Fairfax, for the coming year. Other officers include F. P. Curtis, senior warden; Thomas P. Chapman, jr., junior warden; H. L. Collier, senior deacon; Harvey M. Cross, junior deacon; Irvin T. Kenyon, secretary, and Robert D. Graham, treasurer.

Concordia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., at Vienna, has elected G. A. Merry, master; J. Lovell Jeffries, senior warden; F. G. King, junior warden; John H. Ruff, senior deacon; B. H. Martin, junior deacon; J. F. Ortel, secretary, and J. W. Bennett, treasurer.

Louis Withers, of Fairfax Station, has been arrested by Sheriff E. P. Kirby on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and possession of ardent spirits. The trouble started late Monday evening, when Withers' store at Fairfax Station was discovered afire by O. W. Chesley, who was passing, and spread the alarm. The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department and neighbors soon extinguished the blaze, which caused about $150 damage to the building and stock. A guard was left at the store to protect the goods from marauders. Withers, who had been absent at the time of the fire, is alleged to have returned under the influence of liquor and assaulted the guard and to have made several obscene utterances and threats against him. A warrant was obtained for his arrest, and Sheriff Kirby in serving it found a quantity of alleged liquor on a table in the kitchen of the Withers home. The preliminary hearing will be held tomorrow evening in Fairfax.

The Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department was called to the home of Conrad Fox, in West Falls Church, twice yestfierday morning. The first alarm was at 7:05 o'clock in the morning and the second about noon. Both fires were caused by defective installation of a new heating plant, according to Fire Chief E. M. Ward. A contractor had closed an old fireplace and in doing so had exposed a floor beam in the chimney. During hte first fire the firemen removed the beam, but another, which they failed to discover, made the second run necessary.

The house belonging to Anthony T. Jackson, at Groveton, on the Washington-Richmond highway, about three miles south of Alexandria, was burned to the ground yesterday. Lack of water in that community, due to the continued drought, prevented the Alexandria firemen, who responded to the call, from rendering aid. Neighbors succeeded in saving some of the furniture on the first floor before the firemen arrived. Jackson was at work when the fire, which is believed to have started from a defective chimney, occurred. His wife and small children were in the house when the b'aze was discovered. The loss is estimated to be about $4,500. A box of cartridges exploding from the heat caused both firemen and spectators to beat a hasty retreat while the fire was at its height.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday at the Fairfax County courthouse to the following persons:

William B. Davidson, jr., 22, and Helen Crickenberger, 18, both of Vienna; George W. Bradfield, 21, of Manassas, and Irene Gray, 16, of Clifton Station; Robert Lee Taylor, 31, and Melva Hall, 18, both of Springfield. In each instance the bride's parents accompanied the couples and gave their consent.

Grocer Takes Own Life Over Financial Losses

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 24.—Despondent over financial reverses, George W. Smith, 55, retail grocer, committed suicide by drinking a poison. He was found this afternoon slumped over the wheel of his automobile at the entrance to Lambeth Field, at the university.

A native of Michigan, Mr. Smith came here from Nelson County, where he was a merchant for ten years. Three weeks ago he filed a petition in bankruptcy.

Silver Spring Couple Seeks Wedlock Prize

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gill, of 8110 Grove street, Silver Spring, Md., who yesterday made their bid for honors in The Post Wedlock Contest. The two had been married 61 years last November 11.

James P. Gill and Wife Enter Post Contest; Wed in 1869.

Suburban Washington made another bid for honors in The Post wedlock contest yesterday, when Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gill, of 8110 Grove street, Silver Spring, Md., entered the competition to determine the oldest married couple in Washington and vicinity.

Mr. Gill, 87 years old, and Mrs. Gill, 86, were married 61 years last November 11. Retired now, and living alone with his wife in their Silver Spring cottage, Mr. Gill describes himself as "just a plain farmer."

Mr. Gill "farmed" for 40 years on a tract of land some 8 miles above Silver Spring, but sold the place about seven years ago and came to town to live.

A veteran of the Civil War, Mr. Gill served for two years in the Union Navy from 1862 to 1864 as a first class fireman aboard the gunboat Freeborn. After the war he returned to Washington, his birthplace, and five years later met the woman who was to be his companion for more than three score years.

The Gills are great grandparents now. Their children number eight, their children's children, 22, and they have 3 great-grandchildren.

Two Girls Are Injured When Auto Hits Pole

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 24.—Miss Daisy Seaman, of Montebello, Nelson County, received a fracture of the pelvis, and Miss Mittie Smith, also of Nelson County, received minor injuries when a truck operated by W. A. Smith crashed into a telephone pole at the intersection of the Frys Spring and new Lynchburg road yesterday afternoon. Both girls were removed to the University Hospital.

Smith said he lost control of the truck when it skidded on the wet pavement as he entered the road from the Lynchburg highway. Smith was unhurt in the accident.

Convicts Raise Counsel Fee to Free Colleague

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Here's one way to get out of jail. Ohio County Jail inmates were the happier tonight for the absence of Charles Clark, a prisoner whose mischievous pranks irked them so they raised $25 counsel fees to aid him in seeking a parole.

Clark, who once stuffed the cell locks so thoroughly that the other prisoners were delayed several hours in getting their meals, was placed on probation after serving eight months of a year sentence for attempted robbery.

Factory to Run on Full Time.

Va., Dec. 24 (Special).—Announcement was made today by the Buckhannon Garment Co., of Buckhannon, that its factory there will resume operations in full, employing 100, January 1, after being operated part time since last August owing to poor business. E. E. Stoffel, manager, said orders on hand insured capacity operation for three months, with new orders piling up.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE SEASONAL DISTURBANCE.

I.

WHAT'S that grunting in the parlor?
What's that swearing in the hall?
Why that hot and bothered manner
Now so typical of all?
Why is each one in the household
Growling like a subway guard?
It's because they face the problem
Of the Merry Christmas card.

II.

Why is father so impatient?
What's the reason he's so cross?
I can hear him in his study,
His control a total loss:
What's the reason for his temper?
Why that manner cold and hard?
He is working on a jingle
For his home-made Xmas card.

III.

Why does mother seem so peevish?
What's the reason she's so blue?
Why that irritating manner?
Why the conduct of a shrew?
What's the reason for her ravings?
Why that attitude so drear?
She's just trying to decide on
An exclusive card this year.

IV.

Why is grandma cross and snappy?
What's the reason she's so tart?
What's the cause of all her meanness
When she doesn't look the part?
I just passed her in the hallway
And she bit me on the wrist,
But I guess it's just because she's Making up her Christmas list.

V.

WHY is Uncle Edgar waspish?
He is sullen and he's sour;
I can hear him as he grumbles
In his study by the hour.
Christmas greetings he is framing
And he'll snap at you I fear—
For he's trying to remember
Those who sent him cards last year.

VI.

Why that row out in the kitchen?
Why that stamping on the floor?
Hark! Another crash of dishes
And a slamming of the door.
It's the maid who's in high dudgeon
And she's very cross—and how!
For she's postponed yuletide greetings
And she's got to send 'em now!

VII.

Hark! There's fighting up above us,
Hear those voices loud upstairs!
There's dissension just below us
And a breaking of chairs.
What's the reason for the trouble?
Why the turmoil and the stress?
All the neighbors are deciding
On their Christmas cards, I guess.

Attention, Bridge Fans.

A DEVICE has been patented which shuffles and deals the cards at bridge, but what the game needs is a contraption that will draw and quarter a partner who trumps your ace.

And how about a little green light that will automatically flash after a certain reasonable interval in front of the preoccupied player and tell him when his turn comes to play?

Scarlet Fever Puts Jail Under Quarantine

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 24—One hundred and twenty prisoners in Harrison County Jail found themselves under double restraint today. One developed scarlet fever and it was necessary to impose strict quarantine during the Christmas holiday season.

The patient is Frank McNemar, of Northview, city prisoner serving 30 days for disorderly conduct. Those whose terms expire will not be released until the quarantine period ends.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—At the next session of the Virginia Legislature, Attorney General John R. MONTGOMERY OPENS CHRISTMAS SEASON

Gaily Decorated Trees and Caroling Are Features of Observances.

CHURCH SERVICES TODAY

Christmas was ushered into Montgomery County with church services and community celebrations last night and this morning. Throughout the county, many of the homes were decorated with bright Christmas lights and in nearly every hamlet a community Christmas tree was lighted.

In many of the communities, carol singers wandered through the streets welcoming the new born Babe. At the Montgomery County General Hospital, the citizens of Sandy Spring gathered to sing carols about a Christmas tree which had been erected and illuminated by the Young Men's Club of Olney.

Carol singers gathered about the community trees in Northwoodside, Blair, Gaithersburg and many of the other communities.

Gaithersburg Lights Tree.

Gaithersburg lighted its immense Christmas tree last night with services conducted by the Boy and Girl Scouts of the community. Scout Daniel Robertson opened the exercises with the notes of "assembly" on his bugle. Troop Leader Stewart Seaton presided and made the announcements. Mickey Burns and Margaret Bean sang a duet and three boys, Daniel Robertson, William Eader and Jack Haske sang "Jingle Bells." A feature of the exercises was the Echo Chorus of Girl Scouts.

The gathering joined in singing carols, led by Mrs. Edgar Rogers. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. John Engle and Miss Mae Ryland. The tree is located on the Frederick road, about a block from the new overhead bridge.

Although Rockville had no celebration, a Christmas tree was lighted on the grounds of the courthouse. The Silver Spring community tree was lighted last Monday night by Secretary of Labor Dosk. The Silver Spring Lions Club will distribute baskets among the needy today.

Carols were sung about the community tree at Blair last night from 10 o'clock to midnight. Mrs. Lloyd Beers, president of Blair Citizens' Association, which sponsored the tree, was assisted with the program by Mrs. James Robb and Ralph Harris.

Chevy Chase Has Tree.

The Citizens Association of Section 8, Chevy Chase, sponsored the Christmas tree program held last night on the lawn of St. John's Episcopal Church, Bradley Lane and Wisconsin avenue. J. Harry Welch, president of the association, lighted the tree at the same time that President Hoover lighted the Washington tree. The community tree in front of the Noma Park Volunteer Fire Department firehouse is sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary.

The six communities along Wisconsin avenue, between the District Line and Bradley Lane, Friendship Heights, Somerset, Kenwood, Drummond, Chevy Chase Gardens and Chevy Chase Terrace are competing in a contest sponsored by the Montgomery County Suburban Garden Club for a prize for the best decorated community.

The Fairland community tree was sponsored by the Fairland Parent-Teacher Association.

Midnight masses were held at all of the Catholic Churches of the county and midnight services were held in many of the Protestant churches. All of the churches will hold special services today.

Senate Lands Group To Visit Everglades

(Associated Press.)

Seven members of the Senate public lands committee will leave tomorrow night for Florida to conduct a survey in connection with pending legislation proposing an Everglades national park.

They will be gone four or five days. Those making the trip are Chairman Nye, North Dakota, and Senators Oddie, Nevada; Glenn, Illinois; Dale, Vermont, and Norbeck, South Dakota Republicans, and Walsh, Montana, and Ashurst, Arizona, Democrats. Five will be accompanied by their wives.

SIX ARE ACQUITTED OF HOLLY THEFTS

Two Others Found Guilty and Fined in Hyattsville Police Court.

HUNTER IS SENTENCED

Charges were dismissed against six of the eight accused as "evergreen pirates" arrested last week when they appeared in Hyattsville police court yesterday. The other two were convicted and fined $5 each.

The eight were arrested with loads of Christmas greenery which they were bringing into the District for sale. They had no certificates from the owners of the land where the greens were cut, showing that they had been obtained legally. Maryland law provides that tree cutters must have written permission from the owners of the land.

The six who were dismissed brought those from whom they had obtained permission into court to testify that the cutting was legal. Those against whom charges were quashed were Martin Porter, Ben F. Huff, John S. Rawlings, James J. Wimberley, Bernie Newman, and Frank Bernard.

Those fined were George F. Johnson, of Washington, and William Lee, of Deanewood, both colored. Lee was said to have taken holly from the property of Norman Alsop, on the River road, while Johnson cut trees on land along Defense highway. Both men were arrested by Constable Andrew Gasch.

John Cranford, colored, of North Brentwood, was fined $50 on a charge of possession of liquor. Cranford was arrested by Jesse James, chief of police of that town, after a raid on the man's home.

A fine of $25 on charge of "possessing muskrat skins taken out of season" was placed against Charles Blandford, of Queen Anne district. Joseph Harris Rogers, a game warden, made the arrest after a raid on Blandford's house. Four skins were said to have been found secreted on the premises.

Jack Wood, of Brightseat, was fined $5 on a charge of assault and battery on Herbert Canton, of the same address. The charges rose out of a fight between the two men. A number of traffic cases made by State Policeman C. W. Cubbage were held over, because the policeman was away on Christmas leave.

Three cases of typhoid fever have been reported from Laurel, two of them in one family. Health officials are at a loss to discover the source of the disease, as the water supply is believed pure. It is being tested, however.

Celebrations of Christmas, both public and in the home, will occupy the time of Prince Georges residents today. All churches are holding special services this morning, and in some of them there will be other celebrations this aftrenoon and tonight.

Community Christmas trees have been erected in Mount Rainier and Riverdale, and various charitable organizations have taken good care that the poor will not suffer from a lack of Christmas happiness. More than 500 toys, donated to the Associated Charities, have been repaired and refurbished by members of the Bladensburg unit of the rescue squad and have been distributed to needy children.

The Associated Charities have also sent baskets to families where they are needed, as have other organizations. Among them is the social welfare committee of the Women's Club of Riverdale.

At 6 o'clock tonight there will be a service before the Christmas tree on the lawn of St. John's Episcopal Church in Beltsville. Candy for the children will be distributed at this time. The Women's Community Club of the town is sponsoring the celebration.

Three men were arrested early yesterday morning by County Policemen Claude Reese and E. E. Brown and three carloads of bottled Christmas cheer were seized. The trio, arrested after three separate chases, were each charged with transportation and possession and held under $1,000 bond.

The men arrested are John Eabchak, George Davidson and Arthur Morton. Davidson is out on bond, but the others are in the Bladensburg Jail. The policemen reported that these and another car which escaped them each used smoke screens during the chase.

A number of petty robberies, all committed in the same manner in Cheverly, led police to believe that a gang of thieves has settled in that territory. Police believe the thieves are familiar with movements of residents of each house, as the thefts were all committed early in the night when there was no one at home.

The tobacco crop in the Prince Georges district last year totaled about 25,000,000 pounds, valued at $6,750,000, according to statistics gathered by W. B. Posey, tobacco specialist of the University of Maryland. This is about 72 per cent of the normal in weight and about 66 per cent of the normal value for this crop.

Considered in the light of the unusual drought last summer, these figures are decidedly encouraging, he said. Mr. Posey also reviewed the work done by the extension service of the university in educating farmers to new methods of soil culture. The tobacco-judging contest of the 4-H Club was attended by 37 contestants this year.

Christmas Jinx Pursues Father

Son's Mishap Continues Unlucky Streak That Began Years Ago.

Danville, Va., Dec. 24.—W. H. Hill, of North Danville, today continued in his streak of unhappy Christmas days which began four years ago. His son Willard, 14, was in a hospital, having been hurt dangerously when his sleigh hit a post. Last Christmas his daughter, Ruth, had acute appendicitis and went to a hospital.

In 1928 his grandchild, Eldridge Hill, was run over, one of his legs being broken. Christmas, 1927, saw another daughter, Bessie, undergoing an operation.

Nine years before that, at Christmas, the same daughter was run over by an automobile.

"It always hits me at Christmas," the father said in giving the chronology of misfortunes.

VIRGINIA'S RETURNS FROM GAS TAX GAIN

Total for Year Is Estimated at $11,250,000, About $1,000,000 Increase.

117 CONCERNS ASSESSED

Richmond, Va., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—T. McCall Frazier, State motor vehicle commissioner, said today that he expected the revenue to the State this year from the gasoline tax to amount to approximately $11,250,000, or between $900,000 and $1,000,000 more than in 1929.

The total collected during the eleven months of 1930 ended November 30 was $10,517,994.51. The total for the entire year, twelve months, in 1929 was $10,379,274.64. The gas tax collected by the motor vehicle division during the month of November, 1930, was $915,581.51, representing an increase of $31,970.76 over the same month in 1929.

The tax is assessed on the gasoline sold by 117 companies operating in the State.

Mr. Frazier said the increase was expected after allowance was made for approximately $600,000 that will be refunded to consumers of the motor fuel in machines used in agricultural production, airplanes, motor boats and other gasoline engines, used in vehicles that do not operate on the roads.

In this connection, the motor vehicle commissioner said the consideration of applications for tax refunds was one of the greatest tasks confronting the commission. More than 600,000 applications have been made for tax refunds from persons who declare they have used the gasoline in machines exempt from the motor fuel tax. Each application is passed on separately.

Every employe of the division has been worked to the limit during the past week supplying the public with the 1931 automobile license plates.

Mr. Frazier emphasized the fact that the new tags must be on the automobiles of the State by midnight January 15. State police will have orders to arrest all persons driving automobiles on which the new tags are not plainly visible, after that date.

13 HELD IN ATTACK ON MILL WORKER

Nonunion Man Gives His Version of Labor's Strike Methods.

DAUGHTER ALSO HEARD

Danville, Va., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—Charges against thirteen men were sent to the grand jury today at a preliminary hearing in police court for a group accused of attacking C. W. McKellar, a nonunion worker, in the Riverside and Dan River cotton mills. Two other prisoners in the case were discharged.

The thirteen, bonded for appearance at the January term of corporation court were: John Duffy, W. M. Patton, James Stephens, Lee Carter, Lee Simpson, C. C. Huff, L. Fitzgerald, K. Sage, Charles Childress, Marvin Scism, P. G. Eury, Felix Dabbs and J. L. Payne. Charges were dismissed for lack of evidence against H. J. Albright and F. E. Fulton.

None of the accused testified.

Daughter Testifies.

McKellar and his daughter, Irene, were questioned at great length.

Cross-examination by defense counsel seeking to establish that McKellar forfeited honor and principles in returning to work in the mills, where union employes are on strike, brought an attack from Commonwealth's Attorney John W. Carter, on what he termed "camouflage" to show union members were "always law-abiding and orderly."

Carter asked McKellar if the union members were supposed to keep workers from the mills by violence. McKellar replied: "You might call it that."

Tried to Keep Them "Off."

McKellar said pickets would report cases of workers returning to the mills to C. L. Anderson, picket captain, who "would tell us what to do."

The witness said that on resigning from the union he said he would go back as a spy. He quoted a union leader as instructing him to "go ahead" and informing him, "I'll tell Charlie Anderson to have the boys lay off you and your house."

McKellar said he did not serve as spy, but represented himself as such. "I wanted to keep them off me," he said.

His daughter testified she was struck twice by Eury in the attack on her father.
